Truman Won't Go To Stalin

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman hinted today that he still has in mind a possible special peace mission to Russia at some future time.

At a press conference, he also said the American door is always open to international negotiations for control of atomic weapons.

He dashed cold water on the idea of a possible "Big Three" meeting abroad, newly raised by a campaign speech of Winston Churchill.

The President repeated what he has said before—that he does not intend to go outside the United States to meet with Stalin or any other state head.

The matter of a possible special mission to Moscow was raised by reporters who asked Truman about a story Arthur Krock had in the New York Times Wednesday.

CAMPAIGN THEN

Krock quoted Truman as saying in an interview that if a political campaign had not been in progress in 1948 the President would have sent Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to Russia to try to "straighten out" Stalin and other Russian leaders as to American intentions.

Krock also quoted the President as saying maybe that would be the thing to do some time.

A reporter asked if Krock's story was correct.

The President told him to read Krock's article—that it would answer the question.

In response to a question as to whether he thought the time has come to see Stalin, Truman replied that he does not.

At the same time, he said that he would be glad to see anyone who wants to come to Washington to consult with him.

Motorcyclist Hurt

Twenty-eight-year-old Richard Ramsay, 1512 Brooke Street, a motorcyclist, was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital at 7.45 this morning to be treated for a badly injured leg suffered in an accident. City police said the motorbike was in collision with a car at Princess Avenue and Douglas Street.

A House Was Here

The bodies of Wilson Carroll, his wife and six children were scattered over a 60-yard area. Another death brought the death toll in the house to nine.—(NEA Photo)

Six Men Of Ditched B-36 Still Missing

H.M.C.S. CAYUGA, PRINCESS ROYAL ISLAND (BUP)—A five-hour battle over rugged terrain of Princess Royal Island by a search party from the Canadian destroyer Cayuga was successful Wednesday night in bringing out the injured crew member who bailed out of the ill-fated United States monster bomber. Six others are still being sought.

Rescued from a slow death on a cliff was Staff Sergeant Vitale Tropoddi, 23, of Brooklyn, N.Y., who was described today as being in "favorable condition."

Tropoddi is suffering from shock and a badly injured foot.

He is now aboard the destroyer.

Instrumental in the rescue from the rugged, snow-covered cliff three miles inland from Barnard Harbor on Princess Royal Island, were Lieut. William Kidd, Vancouver, officer in charge of the party; Chief Petty Officer Wooley, and Petty Officers James Braham, and Bolt, of Victoria. Also with the officers were AB.'s Cull and Partridge, of Victoria.

Surgeon Lt.-Cmdr. Andrew Weir, of Victoria and Edinburgh, Scotland, was with the team and he was assisted by Petty Officer Alex Matte, Victoria, of the navy's medical branch.

Other members of the rescue team included AB's Brodeur, Domremey, Saskatchewan; Huges, Vancouver; Evans, Lawson, Saskatchewan, and Clemmetts, Vancouver.

USE WALKIE TALKIES

Two Calgary men, LS. Dixon and AB. Milton maintained contact with the destroyer with walkie talkies.

Meanwhile, throughout the night searchlights from Cayuga and the United States Coast Guard cutter, played across the sky in the hope that the beam would act as a beacon for the six fliers who are still missing.

Cayuga, commanded by Capt. M. A. Medland, Toronto, today continued to direct land and air search at the scene of Wednesday's dramatic rescue of 10 survivors of the downed plane.

Blast Wrecks Plant

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP)—A shattering explosion ripped through a building of the huge Dow Chemical Company today. Several workers were reported injured.

First reports said the entire roof of one building was lifted by the blast. The roar was heard for miles around.

No deaths were immediately reported.

A fire immediately broke out in the plant, but was reported under control.

Churchill Says Rumor He Died Is Election Ruse

LONDON (UP) — Winston Churchill denied today that he had died this morning. He said a rumor to that effect was part of a deliberate election whispering campaign.

The Conservative Party leader issued the following statement from his home at Chartwell, Kent:

"I am informed from many quarters that a rumor has been put about that I died this morning.

"This is quite untrue.

"It is, however, a good sample of the whispering campaign which has been set on foot. It would have been more artistic to keep this one for polling day."

Drive On Crime In Britain

LONDON (Reuter) — London's top police officials met at Scotland Yard today to plan one of Britain's biggest battles against gangs guilty of armed robbery and violence.

The most serious crime wave since the war has forced British police to make this special drive.

Murders, safe-blastings, mail robberies and hold-ups are competing on front pages with general election news.

Last week-end a girl of 15 was murdered near her home in Edinburgh. Someone beat her savagely about the head with a heavy weapon.

A woman, washing up, was killed by a bullet fired through the door.

A man, sorting mail, was clubbed and $2,000 ($6,300) worth of registered letters stolen.

A family, sitting by its fireside, was held up by three men with a gun and robbed of £80.

Watchmen at a dog track were bound while dynamiters robbed the strong room of £15,000.

Then there is the strange case of the frightened schoolgirl. Detectives are trying to solve the riddle of what so terrified 13-year-old Evelyn Washburn that she died on her way home from a dance in Worthwich, Cheshire.

Six Legislatures Across Dominion Now In Assembly

By CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario and Saskatchewan Legislatures opened today, joining four other provincial government Houses already in full operation.

One of the two Legislatures which opened Wednesday forecast a busy session when the first order paper at Quebec listed a preliminary group of 33 bills. They dealt with agriculture, courts, housing, rural power supply and a dozen other enterprises.

The Speech from the Throne underlined the Quebec government's intention to continue its campaign against subversive ideas.

Newfoundland opened its second session with a Throne Speech prediction of legislation in fishermen's insurance, labor, housing and the tourist industry. Sittings were adjourned for one week after the reading of the speech.

The second session of Ontario's 23rd Legislature, opened today, is expected to debate bills providing for a low-cost housing scheme and a revised labor code.

The Legislature of B.C. opened its session Tuesday.

HAVING TRIED a new injection on animals, Roger des Allees, director of the French laboratory for avian studies at Poitiers, has a theory that a certain product of embryo eggs will enable him to live to be more than 100. He plans to take injections himself.

Hit-Run Driver Took Victim's Body Away In Car; Hunted

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—Police sought today a hit-and-run driver and his companion who killed an elderly woman, then picked up the body and drove away.

The body of 73-year-old Miss Maude Mansfield was found by police several hours after Wednesday night's incident. The body was propped in the back seat of a stolen automobile parked in a residential section.

Mrs. Celia Green, a resident of an old women's home where Miss Mansfield lived, told police she saw the accident. She was quoted as saying that after the automobile had struck Miss Mansfield, the two occupants picked her up, placed her in the back seat and drove away.

Miss Green said she believed the men were taking her friend to a hospital. She reported the accident to the caretaker of the home who notified authorities.

A search in which 10 cruisers and the entire detective force combed the city was launched when hospitals reported receiving no emergency automobile accident case involving an elderly woman.

Several hours after the accident, the woman's body was found in an automobile which had been reported stolen.

BUCHAREST (AP)—Romania's lawyers were told Wednesday they will be unable to serve clients independently after April 1. The profession will go on a collective basis under state control of that date. A presidential decree abolishes the legal profession as a free individual service to clients and places lawyers under direct control of the Justice Ministry.

Negotiators Face Tough Task Ending Contract Deadlock

By UNITED PRESS

Five men were shot today in a clash between 100 pickets and non-union miners at Junior, W.Va.

Four of the wounded men, including the brother of Joseph Sirdich, president of West Virginia's largest United Mine Workers' local, were admitted to Myers Clinic Hospital, Philippi, W.Va., with shotgun wounds.

State Police identified the other wounded man as Bill Williams, owner of the Williams Coal Co. which operates a 27-man drift mine near Junior.

Meanwhile, at Washington, John L. Lewis and the mine operators went back to the bargaining table today, faced with the job of pulling the United States out of its worst coal crisis in history.

Spokesmen for the operators indicated they see little chance of an early break in the bitter contract deadlock.

Lewis had no comment.

The conferees met for the second straight day as stockpiles dwindled below the 10-day point and pressure of employee layoffs and school and factory shutdowns multiplied.

Two personal representatives of President Truman—fact-finding board chairman David L. Cole and federal mediator Cyrus S. Ching—sat with the negotiators. They were under instructions to do everything possible to break the stalemate.

Strong Action If Crisis Goes On

The administration's deep concern was underscored Wednesday by some of Mr. Truman's top economic advisers. They warned that drastic steps will be necessary if the crisis continues.

A Senate subcommittee meantime opened hearings on a bill to bring all unions under the anti-trust law. The bill's author, Senator A. Willis Robertson (Dem.-Va.), said it would end Lewis' "dictating" to producers on coal production prices.

In a report to the White House Wednesday night, Cole said the day's opening bargaining session was devoted to "procedural" matters and a discussion of "the economics of coal." There was no discussion of specific contract demands, he said.

President Joseph E. Moody of the Southern Coal Producers' Association said he would try to "narrow the issues" to contract terms today. He said the operators wanted to take up the thorny ones individually, starting out with the "able and willing" clause. Operators claim that one gives the union a stranglehold on the industry because it can call strikes at any time.

Lewis has been ordered by court injunction to drop those demands.

France Organizes To End Campaign Of Communists

PARIS (UP)—Premier Georges Bidault's government ordered senior officials throughout the nation today to suppress mercilessly any Communist attempts to paralyze the country.

The orders were in the form of circulars warning that the government has reason to believe the Communists will try to demoralize the nation's life through strikes and sabotage.

The Communist program will be directed especially against ports and railroads scheduled to handle U.S. arms shipments under the Atlantic Pact.

The orders were approved at an emergency cabinet meeting held Wednesday night to consider the mounting wave of Communist-inspired strikes which have swept France back into the front line of the east-west cold war.

The cabinet, meeting until the early morning hours today, approved the use of troops and Republican Security Guards to meet the Communist threat.

Cabinet ministers told their subordinates throughout the country that no timidity in dealing with the Communists would be tolerated.

The instructions were described as "protection of the state and public services against any attempt at violence or sabotage."

Brussels Pact Leaders Plan Europe Defences

LONDON (UP) — Military chiefs of the five Brussels Pact nations met today in London to plan the defence of western Europe.

It was understood the chiefs did not intend to discuss the hydrogen bomb on grounds that it was a matter for the scientists at this stage of development.

Participating in the meeting were Field Marshal Sir William Slim, Britain; Gen. Pierre Blanc, France; Gen. Vaele, Belgium; Gen. Kruls, Netherlands, and Col. Jacobi, Luxembourg.

Free Mercy Killer

COPENHAGEN (AP)—A 43-year-old woman who testified she had killed her son to spare him the agony of epileptic fits was released on probation for five years Wednesday after being convicted of manslaughter. Mrs. Agnete Soenddrgaard said she carried out the mercy killing by turning on a gas jet while her 17-year-old son slept in the kitchen.

Trucks Move Slowly Through Russia's Berlin Checkpoint

BERLIN (UP)—Truck traffic on the international highway to Berlin moved slowly through the Russian checkpoint at Helmstedt today with the Russians showing no signs of easing their "little blockade" of Berlin.

Some 60 trucks awaited clearance for Berlin at 8 a.m., while approximately 20 westbound vehicles were held up.

German police said between 10 and 12 trucks per hour were being cleared in both directions. But an American military convoy—the weekly one from the U.S. zone— rolled through the checkpoint without interruption this morning.

Officials said train traffic also moved without interference between Berlin and Western Germany.

Biggest Auto Show

CHICAGO (AP)—The 42nd annual Chicago Automobile show—first since 1940 and biggest anywhere since the war — will open Saturday for a nine-day run. Five million dollars worth of exhibits and 19 different makes of new cars will be shown under one roof.

Gale-Hit Southern Ontario Using Emergency Measures

TORONTO (BUP) — Men, women and children lined up at soup kitchens in many parts of southern Ontario today.

An estimated 20,000 telephone subscribers were without service.

Hundreds of homes were without light or heat.

Farmers who normally use electrically - operated milking machines had to leave their cows unattended, and housewives who usually rely on milk deliveries didn't get any.

That was the picture in parts of this blizzard-battered province as the worst storm in six years entered its sixth day and started blowing itself out after disrupting almost every phase of work and home life.

DEEP DRIFTS

Gale-force winds and heavy snow that in some cases drifted more than 10 feet deep, stalling transportation, had knocked out heavy power lines and left electric cables twisted like thin twine in a kitten's paws.

They cut off power, leaving houses and apartments without light and their kitchens without power for cooking or heating.

Hardest hit today as hydro officials set a tentative damage toll at $20,000 to power lines alone was the small city of Brantford. Ninety families were sheltered in a large common room at the airport where the City Council installed two emergency heaters to keep them warm after their own homes turned frigid.

The Canadian Red Cross, which announced earlier it had assigned disaster crews to stand by for any emergency, set up soup kitchens and gave free meals to scores of families whose stoves lacked power or who were unable to get their regular supplies.

Entire families, many of the men unshaven because of a lack of hot water, huddled around them as Red Cross volunteers in uniform and plain clothes ladled hot soup into their bowls to ward off hunger and the rigors of winter.

Parliament May Widen Unemployment Insurance

By NORMAN M. MacLEOD

OTTAWA (BUP)—Changes in the Unemployment Insurance Act to make it more elastic in meeting pockets of unemployment will highlight Parliament's legislative program, an authoritative government source disclosed today shortly before the opening of the 1950 session.

Details of the proposals were still in the stage of cabinet secrecy. But it was learned a plan would be submitted to Parliament whereby additional unemployment benefits would become available in some instances, provided unemployment in the industries had exceeded what might reasonably be considered a normal level.

Government sources said the plan was complicated, but regarded it as important. They said it would offer at least a partial solution to the problem of spotty unemployment now emerging in different parts of the country and expected to continue for some time.

Hopes Fading For Drop In Tax Rate

Mayor Determined To Avoid Increase

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

Hopes for at least a three-mill drop in the tax rate from last year's record high of 53 mills are fading quickly.

If Mayor Percy George has anything to do with it, the rate definitely will not go above 53, however. He gave that assurance today.

During the December elections and in the mayor's inaugural address hopes were expressed that the all-time high tax rate might be dropped at least to the vicinity of 50 mills. The mayor, however, qualified his hopes with mention of the imponderables which would affect the picture.

Today at least one of the imponderables is known.

LARGE SCHOOL BUDGET

The school board has presented a budget of nearly $1,000,000. In exact figures it stands for Victoria at $931,281, compared with $844,460 last year.

The $86,460 difference, in itself represents an increase of two mills, taking into consideration the fact that the mill in 1949 had a valutation of $42,821.

Ald. Dr. J. D. Hunter, chairman of the public works department, has stated that his public works estimates are up from last year. Just how much is not known.

Last year the public works budget was passed at $448,908.

Second of the imponderables mentioned by the mayor in his inaugural address was salaries.

At the present time five unions are involved with the city in conciliations and arbitrations. If their demands are granted, even in part, it will mean another boost to the civic budget.

SITUATION LESS BRIGHT

"I can't form an opinion yet but the situation looks far less bright now than it appeared at the beginning of the year," Mayor George said, referring to facts known now.

All estimates are now in the hands of D. A. Macdonald, city comptroller, but they will be affected by any arbitration awards.

"It is possible the mill rate may not be down but as far as I am concerned it won't be higher," said Mayor George.

He felt that crutailments would have to made if necessary to keep the tax rate at 53 mills. Some work might have to be curtailed regardless of citizens' complaints.

Two items, however, which might affect the picture favorably are: The city's unexpended balance; what extras, if any, might be forthcoming from the municipal aid tax.

The comptroller's report is expected the end of this month and estimates meetings will likely begin the latter part of March.

Call 40 Police

MONTREAL (CP)—Forty policemen were needed early today to quell a near-riot in the Penguin Cafe on St. Lawrence Boulevard in midtown Montreal. The brawl broke out after 400 men at a stag party had become dissatisfied with the night's show.

Twelfth Flier Saved In North; Rescuers Hunt 5

VANCOUVER (BUP)—The 12th crewman of 17 who bailed out of a crippled B-36 superbomber was found injured today and a 55-man landing party pressed through slush and snow for the five remaining airmen reported down on a British Columbia island.

A terse radio message at 11.30 a.m., P.S.T., from the R.C.N. destroyer Cayuga to R.C.A.F. head quarters in Vancouver said: "Injured survivor located on (Princess Royal) island."

The man's name or the extent of his injuries was not immediately learned. The search party which picked up the 12th survivor was one of three groups from the Cayuga. Another group reported hearing cries for help from another man, while the third group said it had heard shots ahead of them on the island.

The 25-man Canadian Navy land party hit the beach at dawn today in warm drizzling rain. Another 30 Canadian army men joined in the land search shortly before noon. The men were split into three groups and radioed reports via walkie talkies back to the destroyer Cayuga.

Before he was found, R.C.A.F. officers in Vancouver said, "Indications are that the remaining crewmen are on the island. The rest of the crew seemed to think for sure the other six are safe."

Rescued late Wednesday from a slow death on a cliff was Staff Sergeant Vitale Tropoddi, 23, of Brooklyn, N.Y., who was described today as being in "favorable condition."

Tropoddi is suffering from shock and a badly injured foot.

He is now aboard the destroyer.

Surgeon Lt.-Cmdr. Andrew Weir, of Victoria and Edinburgh, Scotland, was with the team and he was assisted by Petty Officer Alex Matte, Victoria, of the navy's medical branch.

Falling From Plank, Man, Woman Drown

SEATTLE (AP)—A man and a woman drowned when they fell from a gangplank into 30 feet of water at the Lake Union Dry Dock early today. The woman's husband was rescued.

The dead: Leonard A. Erickson, 38, Mt. Vernon, and Margaret N. Webster, 31, Seattle.

Mrs. Webster's husband, Jesse, told police Erickson had invited them aboard the freighter Fern for a drink. Webster was the first to fall from the 30-inch-wide gangplank.

Winch Protests Indians Lacking Full Citizenship

The spotlight which shone on native Indians at the opening of the Legislature Tuesday is expected to shine many times again before the session is over.

It was expected Opposition Leader Harold Winch would flip the switch late today in a rally for the red men.

In the Throne Speech it was predicted action would be taken by the government to establish "a closer liaison between our native Indians in all matters coming within the jurisdiction of the province."

It is not known what action this might be.

Opposition Leader Winch says the government should clear up the status of Indians properly now that they have been given the vote.

IN SPECIAL CATEGORY

On old age pensions, social welfare, liquor laws and several other points Indians remain in a special category, he points out.

"Here we have a situation," he says, "where the first Indian member of the House, our C.C.F. man Frank Calder from Atlin, has full privileges of all members, but only as an M.L.A. on the floor of the Legislative Chamber."

When the 34-year-old first Indian member of a legislature or parliament anywhere in Canada stepped outside the House chamber he was subject to restrictions which did not apply to citizens generally, Mr. Winch said.

In other words, Mr. Calder was a full citizen on the floor of the House, but not outside it.

The C.C.F., said Mr. Winch, will press the government to have the Dominion Indian Act straightened out to remove the anomaly under which a man can be a citizen yet not a citizen.

Firebosses End Strike

CALGARY (BUP)—It was announced today that firebosses of two West Canadian Collieries mines in southeastern Alberta had quit their union and returned to work, ending a strike which began on Jan. 13.

Parliament Told Canada Must Be Ready For Defence; Wider Jobless Insurance

From CP and BUP Dispatches

A new session of Parliament was opened in Ottawa this afternoon with a warning that Canada must be prepared to meet any aggressor.

"The cold war still continues and imposes on all the free nations heavy burdens for the provision of defence forces and modern armaments," said the Speech from the Throne, read by Viscount Alexander, Governor-General, to the two Houses in joint assembly.

"Preparedness to meet any sudden onslaught is essential and the means must be provided."

"But the free nations also face a test of endurance," it added, "and our staying power could be endangered by attempting to achieve complete preparedness at the expense of our adaptability to new developments in weapons and techniques of warfare or the efficiency of our social and industrial systems."

SUPPORT FOR U.N.

The Throne Speech pledged Canada's support again for the United Nations, and said measures to preserve peace, as contemplated in the North Atlantic Treaty, were being undertaken as quickly as possible.

On the domestic side, the speech said employment and prosperity still were at a high level in Canada. Private investment and construction and consumer demand remained high.

"However," the speech added, "seasonal and local factors have given rise to a significant amount of temporary unemployment during the past few months.

Extension of unemployment insurance benefits to new categories of workers and renewal of prices support legislation for some primary products were forecast.

No details of the legislation were given.

It is believed the unemployment insurance benefits will be extended to workers in seasonal employment not covered by existing legislation.

At Jan. 12, there were 323,000 unemployed in Canada.

FARMERS BENEFIT

The prices support legislation applies to farm and fish products. The new legislation, extending existing acts passed after the war, will be aimed at assuring farmers and fishermen of a fair price for their products.

The speech said that legislation will be introduced to continue the Canadian Wheat Board as the sole marketing agent for wheat and coarse grains.

On trade, the speech said continued efforts will be made to develop new markets and to reduce trade barriers around the world.

RENT CONTROL

Legislation providing for extension of domestic rent controls will be introduced if the Supreme Court of Canada rules the controls are within the jurisdiction of Parliament. The court is due to give a decision on the controls before the end of this month.

Also to be introduced is a bill providing for revision of the Indian Act. The new legislation is expected to provide a bill of rights for Canada's 135,000 Indians.

Several changes will be made in the Canada Shipping Act. Some of them will incorporate changes suggested by the safety of life at sea convention of 1948 and others will deal with the registration in Canada of Canadian ships.

SALUTE FIRED

The opening ceremonies this afternoon, like those during and since the war, lacked time-honored pomp and color.

As the Peace Tower clock boomed three, Lord and Lady Alexander drove up to the main entrance of the Parliament Buildings in a black limousine. A guard of honor, wearing battle-dress and composed of precision-trained personnel of the three services, greeted him as he stepped from the car.

A royal salute of 21 guns reverberated from Major's Hill Park across the Rideau Canal from Parliament Hill. After taking the salute, Viscount Alexander, top-hatted and wearing morning dress, wheeled and entered the main block.

The procession to the Senate chamber formed up and moved off slowly down the storied hall of fame. In the Senate chamber Throne Speech was read.

New Discipline Code

OTTAWA (CP)—The government plans to reintroduce a bill consolidating existing legislation respecting the defence forces and providing for a purely Canadian code of discipline. This was stated in the Throne Speech at the opening of Parliament today.

Drunken Driving, Brawling Recreation, Delegates Told

Drinking in a beer parlor, drunk driving, high-jacking, slugging and brawling are recreation, according to the surprising statement of E. G. Oldham, chairman of the recreation committee of the third B.C. Natural Resources Conference, as he presented a paper to delegates at the Empress Hotel today.

"Recreation is whatever we do for fun, for the pleasure or thrill of it. British Columbia spends millions of dollars a year on law enforcement, jails, asylums and hospitals because too many people spend too much time in the wrong kind of recreation," Mr. Oldham said.

SUNLIGHT FRESH AIR

Defining recreation in terms of natural resources, he pointed out that they often looked like timber or wildlife or mineral resources and consisted of soil and vegetation, sunlight and fresh air, snow water, rocks or wildlife.

"Our problem is to discover what kinds of recreation will benefit most, what kinds of recreation will have the optimum effect on society," the speaker said.

Canada Sells Seed

WASHINGTON (CP)—Iceland Wednesday received $21,000 in Marshall Aid funds to buy field and vegetable seeds from Canada, the Economic Co-operation Administration announced.

Chemical Plant Blast Kills 7, Nine Injured

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — An explosion wrecked a big building at the sprawling Dow Chemical Company today, killing at least seven workers.

At least nine more men were injured in the violent blast, that shook this entire city of 12,000.

Rescue crews were digging through the smoldering hulk of the ruined building to determine if there were more casualties.

A temporary morgue was set up at the fire department of the great chemical works.

The explosion blasted the roof and one wall off the building which houses Dow's emulsion polymerization process in the manufacture of rubber base paint.

It was not immediately determined how many workers were in the plant at the time.

Every ambulance in this chemical city was called into action to take away the dead and injured. The first of the injured were removed by truck.

Cold Wave Comes

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winter weather returned to Alberta and Saskatchewan today as a mass of cold air swept in from the Peace River country.

The forecast is for temperatures of around 15 below zero tonight, rising to about zero tomorrow, the weather office reported.

Victorians Make Plans As Spring Approaches

Victorians are getting busy with plans for spring and they include everything from the projected purchase of a new garden rake to the latest in women's spring fashions.

Along with the plans, the city's residents are poring over their budgets looking for some loophole which will make it all possible.

Many have found a simple and easy way to find the extra money needed and are getting together spare articles around the house and telephoning B 3131 to enlist the aid of the Times Classified Section in selling them.

Order French Emigre Deported

MONTREAL (CP) — Immigration department officials said today a three-man board had ordered the deportation of Count Jacques de Bernonville.

Under the order the 52-year-old French nobleman must return to his native country, where he is under death sentence for collaboration with the Nazis.

A possibility was seen that De Bernonville may ask the federal government to exercise clemency and permit him to remain as a political refugee.

The three-man immigration board was specially set up late in December to deal with the case.

Five Wounded As Sides Fight In U.S. Coalfields

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Five men were shot today in a gun battle between a group of mine guards and a band of 100 pickets at a small non-union mine in West Virginia.

The violence came as the Duquesne Light Co. requested a voluntary 20 per cent cutback in power consumption by its 40,000 industrial and commercial consumers in the Greater Pittsburgh area.

The cutback was expected to add hundreds of unemployed to the more than 50,000 furloughed by coal-starved railroads and industries. The company said low supplies and the poor quality of its remaining coal made the cut necessary.

RAMPS BURNED

Picket violence also was reported at Scottdale, Pa., where three coal loading ramps were burned. A steam shovel operator at a non-union strip mine was pulled from his machine and threatened.

The West Virginia gun battle came three hours after the pickets had been driven away from the Williams Coal Co. mine at Junior, W.Va., when the company owners fired warning shots over their heads.

Five brothers who operate the 27-man drift mine again opened fire on the advancing pickets with shotguns when they ignored warnings to halt. They were backed by their guards, also armed with shotguns. The pickets returned the fire with shotguns, rifles and revolvers after taking cover in a nearby barn.

AT BARGAINING TABLE

Meantime in Washington John L. Lewis and the mine operators went back to the bargaining table today, faced with the job of pulling the United States out of its worst coal crisis in history.

Spokesmen for the operators indicated they see little chance of an early break in the bitter contract deadlock.

Lewis had no comment.

Jobless Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—Unemployment in some spots in the United States is "as high as it was during the depth of the depression," government experts told a congressional appropriations subcommittee Wednesday.

Provinces Asked To Draft Agenda For Fall Parley

OTTAWA (BUP)—A Dominion-Provincial conference will be held early next autumn, and the provinces have been asked to draft their own agenda, it was announced today.

The government told the new session of Parliament in the Throne Speech that meantime, negotiations were proceeding with the provinces on housing, the Trans-Canada Highway, and forest conservation.

The Dominion-Provicnial constitutional conference in January, the speech said, made a "promising beginning" on working out a method of amending the Canadian constitution within Canada.

"The governments of all the provinces have also been invited to participate in a general conference between the federal and provincial governments early next autumn to consider other matters of mutual concern," the seech said.

"The several provincial authorities have been asked to make suggestions as to the principal topics they will wish to have discussed at this conference," the speech added.

'INJURIOUS EPITHETS'

I SEE THAT the Italian Chamber of Deputies has issued a little book for the guidance of its members in debate. Entitled "A Dictionary of Prohibited Words" it is, in essence, a dictionary of don'ts, for it consists of a list of "injurious epithets," which are barred from usage on the floor of the chamber.

Not having seen the booklet, I have no knowledge of what particular terms are taboo in Rome's parliamentary circles. But I do recall some self-styled statistician once saying there are 113 well-established and recognized terms of calling the other fellow a liar—a practice which is strictly taboo in legislative procedure.

CLASSIC INVENTIONS

THOSE SYNONYMS range through the whole scale from the schoolboy's "fibber" to the perjurer in a court case. And British parliamentary history is full of classic examples of the wily ways in which M.P.'s and ministers have circumvented the taboo, by managing to keep within the letter of the law but at the same time conveying opprobrium.

Most notable example, perhaps, was Winston Churchill's famous phrase in which he branded an opponent's statement on the floor of the House as "a terminological inexactitude." But "liar" in all its variants is not the only injurious epithet which lays the user open to rebuke from the Chair.

FLURRY OVER 'NUTS!'

NOT LONG AGO the British House of Commons was sent into a dither when Mr. Gallacher, Communist M.P. for Glasgow, Scotland, loudly enjaculated "Nuts!" following a mild suggestion made by Mr. Ernest Thurtle, member for Shoreditch, about the authority of the Chair.

At the same time the Shoreditch member was disposed to treat the interjection with "the contempt it deserved," he said. But it was another matter when, in Hansard the next day, he saw it recorded in black and white.

GROSSLY INSULTING

MR. THURTLE described it a "grossly insulting attack" and demanded its deletion from Hansard. Further, he added, he was not unbalanced, as implied, and he "was not disposed to use the language he contemplated using in other circumstances, calling the hon. member a liar."

Needless to say this neat, if negative, injection of another injurious epithet brought a rebuke for Mr. Thurtle. The Speaker reminded him:

"It is one of our rules that an hon. member must not call another hon. member a liar. If he will say he is mistaken or wrong, then he will be perfectly all right and quite as clear."

SHOREDITCH COME-BACK

ANYONE who knows the Shoreditch section of London will readily understand why its M.P. promptly agreed not to call Mr. Gallacher a liar if the Speaker so ordered, but contented himself with saying that "what the hon. member said was a lie!"

That, of course, precipitated another heated debate in which Mr. Churchill and Lord Winterton, among others, searchingly examined the advisability of retaining or expunging the word "lie" and its whole relationship to "liar." But, in the argument, the word "nuts" seems to have been neglected.

However, Mr. Gallacher, whose "Nuts!" had started the whole uproar, finally admitted he was sorry, and Mr. Thurtle said he was satisfied. After which, the House turned its attention to other crises—such as the cold war, dollar deficiencies and austerity problems.

B.C. Telephone 1949 Expansion Sets New Record

The B.C. Telephone Co. and associated companies operating in B.C. spent a record $8,900,000 last year on the greatest expansion and improvement program in the system's history.

This is announced by company officials following a review of 1949 operations which featured the installation of new central office and outside plant equipment and the start or completion of 25 building projects in various parts of the system.

More cable was placed throughout the territory last year than in any other previous year, and 60 new long-distance circuits were added in B.C. and between B.C. and outside points.

The system made the second-largest telephone gain in its history with an increase of 18,940 new instruments in 1949, for a record total of 235,675 at the start of 1950.

Major manual switchboard additions were made to 20 exchanges throughout the territory and more than 12,000 lines of new automatic equipment put in service.

Average business day calling hit a record high of 1,350,000 conversations, compared with the previous record of 1,281,000 in 1948, and total long distance calls increased from 5,893,946 in 1948 to 6,238,995 last year.

A record number of employees, more than 4,400, were on the system payroll last year.

Sweetbriar Reporter Says Arctic Fight Needs More Than Ordinary Guts, Brawn

By NOEL MOSTERT

WITH THE DEFENDING FORCE IN THE YUKON (BUP) —Three days in the "Sweetbriar" front line convinced this reporter that Arctic warfare will demand the toughest indoctrination yet devised and that the troops here still had a lot to learn.

The experience was morale-shattering, bitter and utterly depressing.

For 72 hours I alternately crouched in or drove a snowmobile, built camp on three-foot deep snowbanks, and joined snowshoe patrols scouting for the so-called enemy. In fact I played the full role—rather attempted to do so—of a member of Canada's toughest winter-trained force, the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry of Calgary.

The regiment was pushing up the Alaska Highway to hold the invader at bay. Even the rigorous training which had prepared these men for the exercise didn't prevent some of them from collapsing with fatigue over the wheels of their vehicles, coughing with nausea after traveling three days and nights with almost the minimum of food and sleep, and suffering acute headache from the general strain.

However, for the most part, the Pats took it well. Arctic fighting takes more than ordinary guts and brawn. It calls for nerves as hard as the mountains which rear above this northern highway and emotion as cold as the snows which cover them. In other words the soldier must be a bulwark against despair.

This operation started midnight Sunday when the Princess Pats left Whitehorse in a long convoy of trucks, jeeps, snowmobiles and artillery transports. I was the only correspondent to accompany the move, and filled-in on a snowmobile where two men were short. The troops work in five man teams.

There followed a long night in the darkened vehicle, skirting cliff faces and straining to rivet attention on the road and not on the cramped compartment and the dull ache of limbs.

Penguin, as the snowmobile is known, had been articized. This word is a new contribution to the modern vocabulary and means that the vehicle was equipped to withstand the northern cold.

It was cold inside that cab. We had to press our hands and boots close to the small heater behind the drivers seat to get them warm. We used the heater later to warm the rations, such as pork and beans and canned hamburger.

More Fish, Game Propagation Urged For Tourist Trade

A. D. Turnbull, Coalition member for Rossland-Trail, does not think the tourist industry of the province is developing as quickly as other major industries.

Value of production of forest products, in mining, fishing and manufacturing had increased greatly over the past five to 10 years—over a 100 per cent increase in most cases—he said in the House Wednesday.

"But the tourist industry which should be one of our major industries, lags," he claimed.

It was not entirely the fault of the Department of Trade and Industry, though.

Fish and game was one of the drawing cards in the department's publicity, but not enough money was being invested in the conservation and propagation activities of the Government Game Commission.

"I suggest to you that one reason our tourist business is not greater is that we have not developed our resources of fish and game as we should have," Mr. Turnbull said.

He understood the province spent less on its game department than the department collected.

SALT SPRING ISLAND — Repairs to Salt Spring United Church were carried out at a cost of $300, it was reported at an annual meeting of the United Church congregation. Rev. J. Dewar presided.

W. M. Mouat was elected secretary-treasurer, with Mrs. S. Wagg as assistant. Board of stewards elected for a term of three years were: E. Parsons, W. M. Mouat and C. Lenkie.

New Lighting System By Next Winter If By-law Approved

Oak Bay may have the proposed new lighting system installed by next winter, provided ratepayers pass a money by-law for $40,000 to $50,000, it was indicated at a meeting of the Municipal Council Wednesday night.

A. S. G. Musgrave, municipal engineer, said he was anxious to get the new system in as soon as possible, a view in which Reeve P. A. Gibbs concurred.

Mr. Musgrave submitted a report covering the proposed improvements to the present system and council referred the matter to the committee of the whole council.

Under the scheme, the present 460 lights would be increased to 670. Power of the system would be increased.

Lansdowne Property Subdivision Passed

Subdivision of the fifth and last section of the Hudson's Bay Co. property on Lansdowne Heights was approved by Oak Bay Council Wednesday night, subject to the company accepting the fact installation of water, roads and other services will not be carried out until the spring of 1952.

A small ornamental park will be provided by the municipality in the subdivision. The area will be divided into 80 lots, many of which have been spoken for already.

Oak Bay Workers Accept Increase

A $9 across-the-board wage increase retroactive to the beginning of the year has been accepted by the Oak Bay Municipal Employees' Association, Oak Bay Council was advised at its meeting Wednesday night.

Terms of the agreement apply to inside and outside staffs, but not to members of the police force, who are still negotiating.

Temparary employees will receive one dollar per hour instead of 90 cents, and employees with 10 year's service or more will be granted three weeks' holiday.

Cars driven by J. E. Naylor, 1303 Gladstone Avenue; D. W. Swayne of 1758 Pembroke Street, and C. C. Francottie, 1817 Granville Avenue, were involved in a three-car collision on Johnson Street bridge Wednesday afternoon. Damage was slight.

Seafarers Draw Suspension From Local Trades Council

Four representatives of the Seafarers' International Union were forced to walk out of a Victoria Trades and Labor Council meeting Wednesday night.

They left when the council voted to suspend their union from taking part in council affairs.

The suspension was asked for by John Martin, representative of the Victoria Shipyard Workers' Federal Union, who said the Seafarers' International Union, through its national newspaper, The Canadian Sailor, had leveled misleading and irresponsible statements against the local labor council.

A copy of the newspaper was produced and read at the meeting.

The newspaper called the council to task for recently rejecting an amendment to the constitution which would have barred known Communists from council membership. The paper charged that by defeating such an amendment, the council showed itself to have a majority of "fellow travelers."

COUNCIL SPLIT

Council was split almost half and half on the amendment. The vote was 40 in favor and 41 against. A two-third majority would have been necessary for its passage.

Most of those who voted against the motion argued that individual unions are best qualified to determine what members they would delegates to be on the council. Others contended the amendment would serve no purpose as there would be no sure way of determining who was a Communist and who was not.

Council ruled that suspension of the Seafarers' International Union should stand until the union paper made a satisfactory retraction of its previous article.

Before the suspension order became effective, John Newton, spokesman for the S.I.U. delegation, defended the article under attack. He said he was sure in his own mind the council did have "fellow travelers" in its midst. He said the S.I.U. had fought Communism everywhere it was encountered, and would continue to do so.

He said the S.I.U. had associated with the local labor council in order to help what he termed the decent element.

Labor Council To Petition For Sunday Sports

A committee of the Victoria Trades and Labor Council has been named to set up machinery to collect the signatures of 20 per cent of city ratepayers on a "We Want Sunday Sports" petition.

The committee was named at a meeting of the council Wednesday night.

Victor Midgley, delegate to the council from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, was named committee chairman. Serving with him are Jack Reid, Gordon Graham and Elgin Neish.

Naming of the committee followed reading of a letter from the City Council, stating the aldermanic board would not consider discussing the question of Sunday sports until petitioned to do so by at least one-fifth of the tax-paying citizens.

Even then, the letter said, the council would not be obligated to act.

Said Questioning Had Gone Too Far

During lengthy cross-examination of Dr. E. L. McNiven by George F. Gregory in city police court Wednesday, C. L. Harrison, city prosecutor, interrupted to point out to Magistrate H. C. Hall that he could stop cross-examination when he believed it had gone beyond reasonable bounds.

Mr. Harrison said he thought the questioning at this point had done so. The magistrate allowed counsel to continue but ruled out a number of questions.

Drive On Crime In Britain

LONDON (Reuter) — London's top police officials met at Scotland Yard today to plan one of Britain's biggest battles against gangs guilty of armed robbery and violence.

The most serious crime wave since the war has forced British police to make this special drive.

Murders, safe-blastings, mail robberies and hold-ups are competing on front pages with general election news.

Last week-end a girl of 15 was murdered near her home in Edinburgh. Someone beat her savagely about the head with a heavy weapon.

A woman, washing up, was killed by a bullet fired through the door.

A man, sorting mail, was clubbed and $2,000 ($6,300) worth of registered letters stolen.

A family, sitting by its fireside, was held up by three men with a gun and robbed of £80.

Watchmen at a dog track were bound while dynamiters robbed the strong room of £15,000.

Then there is the strange case of the frightened schoolgirl. Detectives are trying to solve the riddle of what so terrified 13-year-old Evelyn Washburn that she died on her way home from a dance in Worthwich, Cheshire.

A House Was Here

Only a few foundation stones and two scratching chickens remain where a devastating tornado blew away a three-room farmhouse near Ripley, Tenn. The bodies of Wilson Carroll, his wife and six children were scattered over a 60-yard area. Another death brought the death toll in the house to nine.—(NEA Photo)

Truman Won't Go To Stalin

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman hinted today that he still has in mind a possible special peace mission to Russia at some future time.

At a press conference, he also said the American door is always open to international negotiations for control of atomic weapons.

He dashed cold water on the idea of a possible "Big Three" meeting abroad, newly raised by a campaign speech of Winston Churchill.

The President repeated what he has said before—that he does not intend to go outside the United States to meet with Stalin or any other state head.

The matter of a possible special mission to Moscow was raised by reporters who asked Truman about a story Arthur Krock had in the New York Times Wednesday.

CAMPAIGN THEN

Krock quoted Truman as saying in an interview that if a political campaign had not been in progress in 1948 the President would have sent Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to Russia to try to "straighten out" Stalin and other Russian leaders as to American intentions.

Krock also quoted the President as saying maybe that would be the thing to do some time.

A reporter asked if Krock's story was correct.

The President told him to read Krock's article—that it would answer the question.

In response to a question as to whether he thought the time has come to see Stalin, Truman replied that he does not.

At the same time, he said that he would be glad to see anyone who wants to come to Washington to consult with him.

Britain Seven Years Ahead Of World With Giant Plane

LONDON (CP)—A. J. Pegg, chief test pilot for the Bristol Aeroplane Company, believes the 127-ton Bristol Brabazon, the world's largest airliner, now undergoing flight trials, has given Britain a seven-year lead in world aviation.

"It has put us on the aviation map fairly and squarely," Pegg said in an address, "And with this airplane, we stand a good chance of running ahead of our immediate competitors."

"It will probably take other countries seven years to equal it," he said, adding that estimates indicated the Brabazon would be a paying proposition. Main criticism of the plane has been that it might be uneconomic to operate.

Pegg has been in charge of testflying the air giant designed to carry 100 passengers non-stop between London and New York. Describing some of these, he said the "Brab" was so big "you don't know when you leave the ground."

"The main wheels are so far behind, that when the nose wheels lift, as far as the pilot is concerned you are flying and so we have a light in the cockpit to shine when the main wheels leave the ground."

Gale-Hit Southern Ontario Using Emergency Measures

TORONTO (BUP) — Men, women and children lined up at soup kitchens in many parts of southern Ontario today.

An estimated 20,000 telephone subscribers were without service.

Hundreds of homes were without light or heat.

Farmers who normally use electrically - operated milking machines had to leave their cows unattended, and housewives who usually rely on milk deliveries didn't get any.

That was the picture in parts of this blizzard-battered province as the worst storm in six years entered its sixth day and started blowing itself out after disrupting almost every phase of work and home life.

DEEP DRIFTS

Gale-force winds and heavy snow that in some cases drifted more than 10 feet deep, stalling transportation, had knocked out heavy power lines and left electric cables twisted like thin twine in a kitten's paws.

They cut off power, leaving houses and apartments without light and their kitchens without power for cooking or heating.

Hardest hit today as hydro officials set a tentative damage toll at $20,000 to power lines alone was the small city of Brantford. Ninety families were sheltered in a large common room at the airport where the City Council installed two emergency heaters to keep them warm after their own homes turned frigid.

The Canadian Red Cross, which announced earlier it had assigned disaster crews to stand by for any emergency, set up soup kitchens and gave free meals to scores of families whose stoves lacked power or who were unable to get their regular supplies.

Entire families, many of the men unshaven because of a lack of hot water, huddled around them as Red Cross volunteers in uniform and plain clothes ladled hot soup into their bowls to ward off hunger and the rigors of winter.

Hit-Run Driver Took Victim's Body Away In Car; Hunted

HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—Police sought today a hit-and-run driver and his companion who killed an elderly woman, then picked up the body and drove away.

The body of 73-year-old Miss Maude Mansfield was found by police several hours after Wednesday night's incident. The body was propped in the back seat of a stolen automobile parked in a residential section.

Mrs. Celia Green, a resident of an old women's home where Miss Mansfield lived, told police she saw the accident. She was quoted as saying that after the automobile had struck Miss Mansfield, the two occupants picked her up, placed her in the back seat and drove away.

Miss Green said she believed the men were taking her friend to a hospital. She reported the accident to the caretaker of the home who notified authorities.

A search in which 10 cruisers and the entire detective force combed the city was launched when hospitals reported receiving no emergency automobile accident case involving an elderly woman.

Several hours after the accident, the woman's body was found in an automobile which had been reported stolen.

One Dead, 2 Missing In Flash Fire At P.E.I. Sport Club

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I. (BUP)—One woman died and two men were missing today in the ruins of the swank Sporting Club, razed in a flash fire Wednesday night.

Police said Mrs. Thomas Keoughan was definitely known to have perished in the blazing building. Police searched the ruins for two men, also missing.

Flames licked through the walls of the building while hundreds of men and women were engrossed in bingo games and on bowling alleys.

Hospital authorities treated 12 persons for superficial burns. Most seriously injured was the Sporting Club's proprietor, Joey Macdonald.

Six Legislatures Across Dominion Now In Assembly

By CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario and Saskatchewan Legislatures opened today, joining four other provincial government Houses already in full operation.

One of the two Legislatures which opened Wednesday forecast a busy session when the first order paper at Quebec listed a preliminary group of 33 bills. They dealt with agriculture, courts, housing, rural power supply and a dozen other enterprises.

The Speech from the Throne underlined the Quebec government's intention to continue its campaign against subversive ideas.

Newfoundland opened its second session with a Throne Speech prediction of legislation in fishermen's insurance, labor, housing and the tourist industry. Sittings were adjourned for one week after the reading of the speech.

The second session of Ontario's 23rd Legislature, opened today, is expected to debate bills providing for a low-cost housing scheme and a revised labor code.

The Legislature of B.C. opened its session Tuesday.

Trucks Move Slowly Through Russia's Berlin Checkpoint

BERLIN (UP)—Truck traffic on the international highway to Berlin moved slowly through the Russian checkpoint at Helmstedt today with the Russians showing no signs of easing their "little blockade" of Berlin.

Some 60 trucks awaited clearance for Berlin at 8 a.m., while approximately 20 westbound vehicles were held up.

German police said between 10 and 12 trucks per hour were being cleared in both directions. But an American military convoy—the weekly one from the U.S. zone— rolled through the checkpoint without interruption this morning.

Officials said train traffic also moved without interference between Berlin and Western Germany.

Board To Give Decision Soon In C.P.-Guild Case

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canada Labor Relations Board reserved decision Wednesday on an application of the American Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) for certification as bargaining agent for editorial employees of the Canadian Press.

The C.P., Canada's news cooperative, sought dismissal of the application. Alternatively, it asked the board to order a government-supervised vote of the employees to determine whether a majority wanted the Guild to bargain for them.

Major point at issue in the 3½-hour hearing was the question of the board's jurisdiction over labor relations involving C.P. editorial workers, with the news agency contending there was no jurisdiction and the union arguing the board had the powers.

The company and union also disagreed on a number of points concerning employees who would be regarded as part of a bargaining unit.

A point advanced by the Canadian Press during the afternoon hearing was that C.P. employees claimed as members by the Guild were not actually members of the union, under sections of its constitution setting out membership requirements. Such a position would make a certification vote necessary.

Critics Unfavorable To 'Stromboli'

NEW YORK (AP)—The Bergman-Rossellini movie "Stromboli" had its world premiere Wednesday in one of the century's hottest blazes of publicity.

From coast to coast, while protests from church, civic and some other groups mounted, the film opened to U.S. audiences of varying sizes.

Early critical reaction was unfavorable. "Not especially interesting nor particularly convincing," said the Hollywood reporter.

"All it lacks is a good story," was the Hollywood Daily Variety's verdict. "The star (Ingrid Bergman) portrays a bosomy wanton through 95 per cent of the footage."

Howard Hughes and his RKO-Radio pictures capitalized in their advertising on the much-discussed out-of-wedlock romance between Miss Bergman and director Roberto Rossellini.

Increase Sought For Vancouver Teachers

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver school board has asked the city council for a $217,000 increase for teachers' salaries in 1950, it was learned Wednesday night.

Total operating expenses for the year were set at $6,757,362—an increase of $451,000 over last year.

The board's report said additions to medical and dental staffs and other operating costs have risen $35,000.

"Despite increasing enrollment," it said, "there is practically no increase in (the provincial government) grant."

To Survey Boundary

EDMONTON (CP)—Work of surveying about 170 miles of Alberta-British Columbia boundary probably will be started in March, provincial authorities said today. The area is north from Peace River to the northwest corner of Alberta. Only a few trappers live there.

Homes For Stability

DURING RECENT MONTHS THE PEOple of this province have learned in general terms of the decision of various governments to facilitate construction of new homes. More explicit detail may be expected in legislative debate forecast on the subject in the Speech from the Throne delivered on Tuesday.

In a few words, the Speech announced: "There will be placed before you legislation enabling my government to enter into agreement with the government of Canada to share responsibility in connection with projects designed to alleviate the existing housing shortage. Concurrently, there will be submitted legislation enabling cities and municipalities to participate with my government in the housing plan devised by various districts to meet their particular needs."

Earlier provincial and Dominion statements have set forth the broad basis on which funds will be made more readily available to individuals intending to construct their own dwellings. Civic responses to these general provisions have reflected the keen interest shown in the plans by the councils and corporations affected.

Specifically the various governments are concerned with the immediate necessity of making available better accommodation for those of our citizens whose present shelter arrangements are admittedly inadequate. Beyond physical needs, the authorities recognize the serious social problems that are arising from overcrowding, and the enforced use of premises which have been declared unsuitable, if not unfit, for human use. The sooner that condition is remedied, the better.

But there is another purpose quite as important as the foregoing in the implementation of a satisfactory housing policy. It reaches beyond the superficial necessity of providing a roof over the heads of our people and touches on the stability of the nation itself. A poorly housed citizenry is a dissatisfied citizenry, open to the overtures and promises of interests highly prejudicial to the welfare of Canada. Conversely, a country in which people can take pride in their homes is a sound bulwark against the enticements of disruptive ideologies which thrive on conditions of discontent.

The family with a good home, not just mere shelter, feels its roots firmly planted in its native or adopted land. It has more than a building as its stake in the country. It has the consciousness of being a definite part of the nation itself, not merely a floating segment of population temporarily domiciled in a shelter of the type from which it hopes to move to something better when given the chance. For this reason, the importance of the housing program scheduled for legislative action at this session will be generally understood. The urgency of solving the shelter problem itself is not minimized. But the significance of the plan does not stop there.

THE DANGER INCREASES

QUITE APART FROM THE QUESTION of how much a pact with Soviet Russia is worth—political expediency being what it is—there appear to be a number of considerations in connection with the newly announced China-Russia agreement that call for further enlightenment. Already Nationalist Chinese sources are claiming that secret clauses in the background of the publicized text have further-reaching implications than those that have been quoted from the document. Naturally, such an attitude is to be expected on the part of the beaten Chiang Kai-shek government, but experience indicates the value of caution in dismissing such accusations without further investigation.

The 30-year joint defence alliance, of course, is a major point in the announcement. And such a document can have as many interpretations as there are definitions of "aggression." The Communist lexicon is sufficiently flexible to permit such terms to be used in any manner desired. As it stands, such an agreement—involving as it does populations totalling nearly 700,000,000—could be a great force for peace in the world. It could equally be a tinder box awaiting a chance spark to precipitate world conflict. When one considers the delicate situation in Indo-China, for instance, where French troops are opposing the efforts of Communist-led forces to grab control of the country, the possibilities become critical. Every observer expects Chinese Communist assistance to be given the Viet Nam rebels; most cannot see how the western democracies can withhold help from the anti-Communists without losing southeast Asia to Red domination. There is a situation, on the border of Russia's newly-sworn ally, in which "aggression," regardless of merit, could sooner or later be charged. Formosa, Korea, Burma provide other danger points should the desire to bring on a crisis appear. This is Russia's answer to the Atlantic Pact. It may have to be countered by a Pacific Pact if the democracies are not to lose still more ground in the eastern cold war.

AYE AYE, SIR

THERE IS SOMETHING REMINISCENT of "the boy stood on the burning deck," in the disclosure that the steersman of the United States battleship Missouri knew she was going aground as she steamed up Chesapeake Bay last month. As he told it to a naval court of enquiry on Monday, he did not impart his belief to the skipper of the great ship because "it is not my place to give the captain orders, it is my place to take orders."

To the landlubber or non-serviceman that may look like arrant foolishness. To know that the ship was headed for shoal water and raise no voice to stop her!—the layman will shake his head in bewilderment. And yet actually the Quartermaster, 2nd Class, could have had little choice. For a steersman to argue with the orders given him, or to act independently of steering commands, could only result in chaos. What if he had succeeded in altering course and the ship had run aground anyway? What if he had been wrong and she had not run aground at all? What if the ordered course was designed to avoid some worse hazard of which he was not aware—a submerged submarine, for instance? The possibilities are endless—and all bad for the steersman.

The job for which he is trained, and to which he must stick in spite of all provocation, is to act as part of the inanimate steering mechanism, translating to it through his ears and his hands the commands of those in charge. One recalls the historic account in the old school readers of the gunner who, on the command of his officer, blew his own little house in the valley to smithereens. The Quartermaster, 2nd Class, was in almost the same situation—and he, too, scored a bullseye.

COL. H. M. URQUHART

FEW, IF ANY, PERSONALITIES AMONG Victoria's distinguished military figures have enjoyed the esteem and affection that were accorded by his fellow officers, juniors and men of the ranks to Col. Hugh MacIntyre Urquhart, C.V.O., D.S.O., M.C., A.D.C., former colonel of the Canadian Scottish Regiment. His was a character which invited trust and respect from those about him. And his was a career in which distinction as a soldier was admirably blended with a quiet gentlemanliness to endear him not only to acquaintances in military circles but to the civilians of Victoria.

Despite his personal reticence, the part played by Col. Urquhart during the First Great War, in which he sustained serious wounds, was well known among soldiers, and his duties in the second conflict were carried out efficiently but without ostentation. His appointment as aide-de-camp to King George V and King George VI symbolized, as did his decorations, the merit of the man whose passing is so widely mourned.

BURDEN OF DEBT

AS THE PARLIAMENTARY CORRespondent of this newspaper reported yesterday, the net direct and guaranteed funded debt of Canada amounts to $15,662,000,000. That represents a debt of $1,200 carried by each man, woman and child in the country—a not inconsiderable sum as per capita debts go. Obviously, the interest charges on such an obligation are an important factor in the country's annual expenditures, and any steps taken to reduce the debt result in a corresponding lightening of the carrying charges. Money expended in debt retirement thus has a double benefit to the public. And that is the appropriate answer to those critics who have been questioning the action of the Liberal government at Ottawa in budgetting for surpluses which could be applied against the national debt.

As our correspondent's dispatch pointed out, about 10 per cent of the debt has been paid off during the past four years, amounting to a decrease of $1,764,000,000 in the load we carry. With the country still in a generally prosperous condition, it is merely good sense to levy taxes for this purpose. If tighter times were to arrive, and retrenchments were necessary, we would be in poor financial position if we had not taken advantage of prosperity to reduce the load. A large part of the debt, of course, was undertaken under the stress of wartime emergency and could not be avovided. About 50 per cent of it, interestingly enough, is owed to the people of Canada as individuals—Victory bonds, War Savings Certificates, Canada Savings Bonds and other government obligations account for $7,707,000,000 of the full total. Tax money used for repayment of these debts thus returns to the people, completing the circuit.

One recalls the advice of Mr. Ilsley during the war, when, as Minister of Finance, he urged the purchase of Victory bonds, as, in one sense, a form of insurance against the day when they must be repaid. It was advice that still holds true.

NOTES

Another trouble with the world is there is more emphasis on a holiday than a holy day.

Herbert Hoover says American sports emphasize free enterprise. Yes, the college that can pay the most gets the best football players.

Another thing wrong with the country is that there are more people willing to hand out advice than there are those who will accept it.

We sometimes wonder how far we have progressed. There are many individuals who will not reach an important decision without consulting a fortune teller.

Austrian Treaty

By WICKHAM STEED,
Former Editor of The Times of London

NEARLY four years ago, in 1946, negotiations began between the British, French, United States and Russian governments for the preparation of a treaty for the establishment of an independent Austria. On January 24, 1950, the deputies appointed by the Foreign Secretaries of those governments to draft the terms of such a treaty met for the 249th time and adjourned until this week without having reached an agreement.

Was this record of persistent failure due to the inherent difficulties of their task? With some knowledge of these difficulties I say emphatically "No." I think the present position is not essentially different from that suggested by the British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Ernest Bevin, on May 15, 1947, when, in a statement to the House of Commons on the Moscow Conference of Foreign Ministers, he said: "One is reluctantly forced to the conclusion that the Soviet government, for reasons not connected with Austria, are anxious to postpone a settlement for as long as possible."

IN OTHER words, the tactics of Soviet Russia in obstructing the conclusion of a settlement with Austria must be understood as forming part of the "cold war" which the Soviet Union is conducting against the western democracies. The local object of these tactics may perhaps be described by an expression which I often heard during the 11 years I spent in Austria. It is "hinausekelm." It means a method designed so to weary and to disgust the holder of a given position that he will give it up and leave it free for somebody else to occupy. Behind the employment of this method lies, as a rule, a calculation that the new occupant will be able to turn it to personal advantage. If this is the method now adopted by Soviet Russia towards the western powers whose contingents still occupy zones of Austria, I think it mistaken, both psychologically and politically. It will not succeed in "disgusting" the western powers to a point at which they will clear out of Austria and leave the Russians a free hand, and it will turn into hatred of Soviet Russia the feelings of the Austrian people.

MANY YEARS ago, when he was the Librarian of the old Austrian Chamber of Deputies, I knew Dr. Karl Renner who is now President of the Austrian Republic. He is man of firm character, wide learning and rare sagacity. Few men in Europe are so deeply versed as he in all the intricacies of Marxist ideology, both in its economic and political aspects. But he is an Austrian first and foremost; and enjoys the full confidence of the Austrian people. No move in the Russian game of trying to "disgust" the western powers out of Austria is likely to surprise him. And he may well suspect that one object of that game is to gain for Russia control of Austrian economic resources which are believed to include large untapped deposits of oil.

POLITICALLY, Soviet Russian might hope to gain notable advantages in the "cold war" if she could, by obstructing a settlement, exasperate the western powers into an abandonment of their position in Austria. With Hungary and Czechoslovakia in her grip, the political control of Austria would extend the rule of Communism to the frontier of Switzerland on the west, to the Italian border on the south and would almost complete the encirclement of "deviationist" Yugoslavia to the south east. The other nations of continental Europe would be given an object lesson in the superiority of Russian tactics that would encourage Communism within their borders and depress its opponents.

IF I AM RIGHT in this reading of Soviet designs, far more than any solely Austrian issue is involved in Russian obstruction of a settlement with Austria. Though Russia does not want a "hot" war and indeed fears it, she is striving to gain all she can without actual fighting. It follows that the western democracies are bound to withstand her methods and to be as steadfast in their defence of Austria as they were in checking Russian designs on Germany by bringing the Berlin "air lift" to a successful conclusion. Short of a negotiated settlement with Austria they must leave nothing undone to strengthen the hands of the Austrian government and people. Almost for the first time in their history, the Austrian people stand, with conscious responsibility for their own future, behind their government. They look at the western democracies, and Great Britain in particular, for help in their determination to preserve their political and economic independence. I am convinced that they will understand and welcome the determination of the western powers not to be "disgusted out of" Austria, however eagerly they may await the day when all foreign military occupation of their country shall cease.

THE DEPUTIES of the British, French, United States and Russian Foreign Secretaries adjourned their meeting on January 24 until February 15. The prospects of real progress toward a settlement may be no brighter now. The test of patient endurance may still be protracted. If and when a settlement should be reached, it is more likely to spring from some change in the world situation than from any local Austrian consideration. In this respect, time is not necessarily on the side of Soviet Russia. But whether the course of the "cold war" induces or fails to induce Russia to alter her tactics in regard to an Austrian treaty, the western democracies cannot waver or grow weary in defence of what has become a key position for the freedom of Europe.

Chain Reaction

As Our Readers See It

CHILDREN AND FIRE

The bravest man will blanch with fear when trapped by fire, yet this is the fate of dozens of children every winter across Canada and the United States.

These fatalities are so common that they appear to be accepted merely as news items without surprise or concern.

The brief newspaper account explains that parents were unable to effect a rescue because of the intense heat. But there seems to be amazing apathy on the part of the general public toward the children roasting to death in that blazing inferno.

Children are entirely dependent upon their parents, fortunate indeed when those parents prepare for every emergency, but unspeakably tragic when they show more concern for their pigs or bridge parties.

The cremation of living children usually happens when both parents are away from home, but would not occur if they took the children with them, or left a responsible person in charge, or made every possible arrangement for their security.

Many a happy youngster is inevitably doomed to this nightmare of horror next year, or the year after, unless parents realize their responsibility, and discharge it to the fullest extent.

"SAFETY FIRST."

CROWN GRANTS

In the early days of British Columbia the powers in control were anxious to increase settlement and to sell Crown lands. Willing settlers paid their money and received their lands under contracts called Crown Grants. These set forth the terms and conditions of sale. Some terms favored the Crown and some the settlers — because settlers and their work were wanted.

One very important proviso in these grants stated:

"Provided nevertheless that it shall at all times be lawful for us, our heirs and successors or any person or persons acting in that behalf by our or their authority to resume any part of the said lands which it may be deemed necessary to resume for making roads, canals, bridges, towing paths or other works of public utility or convenience so nevertheless that the lands so to be resumed shall not exceed one-twentieth part of the whole of the lands aforesaid and that no such resumption shall be made of any lands on which any buildings may have been erected or which may be in use as gardens or otherwise for the more convenient occupation of any such buildings."

From this province it may be pointed out as follows:

This is a "right to resume" but is not a reservation. To confuse these two would demonstrate a woeful lack in the savvy of very ordinary business. A very major principle in this is that "you cannot resume for nothing that which has been paid for and delivered."

The second point is very clearly stated. "The lands so to be resumed shall not exceed one-twentieth of the whole of lands aforesaid."

The last part is by far the most important. It is of special interest to settlers. It assures them that such road, etc., developments shall not interfere with any of their arrangements for the more convenient occupation of any of their buildings. Your roads have to keep out of gardens, grain fields, hay fields, pastures, wood-lots, or any other place which may be used for the more convenient occupation of house, barn, or any other building.

Owners of lands where new highways are projected or have been built would do well to carefully examine the terms of the contracts governing the lands which have been handed down to them by legal processes as "unto the Assigns and Heirs Forever."

Herbert Morrison--Down To Earth

London Observer Foreign News Service

MR. HERBERT MORRISON is probably the most acute political leader the British Labor movement has ever had. The explanation lies partly in his own character, and partly in the lines which his career has followed. Since, in 1915, he accepted the post of part-time secretary to the London Labor Party, his first concern has been the winning of elections. He found the London Labor Party a small, shapeless, unorganized and negligible factor in the capital's politics. But by 1934, largely as the result of his work, it held a majority on the London County Council.

BRILLIANT ORGANIZER

There were two main reasons for his success. First that he was—and still is—a brilliant party organizer. He recognized from the start the importance of having an efficient party machine. Secondly, and perhaps even more important, he realized that if a party was ever to succeed at the polls, it must convince the electorate that it was practical and down-to-earth.

He has never had much time for the Socialists who are content to talk about unrealizable Utopias: he is far more interested in what can be done now and in the next five to 10 years.

So he set about convincing the electorate that the Labor Party had a practical program. The success of this policy in London enabled him to carry it through on a national level, in spite of opposition from the Labor left-wing. From the 1920's, through the 1930's, to 1945, he urged the Labor Party to "keep its head out of the clouds."

Another in a series of portraits of prominent figures in the forthcoming British general election.

At party conference after party conference, he explained the need to talk to the middle-class in terms that it could understand: it was the failure to do this, he said, that caused the party's defeat in 1935. In 1945 he had his way, and Labor went to the country on a five-year program which, in its social security measures at any rate, was almost as attractive to the middle classes as to the workers.

The result was the overwhelmingly Labor victory.

By 1945 Morrison had already proved his ability as an administrator: First as Minister of Transport in the second Labor government of 1929-31, when he organized the road and rail transport of London under the one, highly efficient London Transport Board; then as Minister of Supply in 1940, when he was responsible for improvising a sudden drive for armaments production; and finally as Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security, when he supervised the country's air-raid defences.

Since 1945 he has acted as leader of the House of Commons, Lord President of the Council and Deputy Prime Minister. Free from departmental routine, he has had an important part to play in planning the government's whole policy.

RECOGNIZED WEAKNESSES

He was one of the first to recognize the weaknesses of Britain's economic position, and today constantly reiterates the need of a real understanding between private industry and the government. In fact, he remains as empirical as ever in his approach: a sincere Socialist who nevertheless realizes that if socialism is to succeed, theory must be fitted to the facts, not facts fitted to the theory.

'First Papers' For New Citizens

Toronto Globe and Mail

IN EARLIER days when Europeans came to Canada as immigrants they retained their foreign citizenship until they were admitted to full status here. The new Canadians now here have no foreign citizenship. They have no Canadian citizenship. Those among them who have good education, and passably good English, are under a specially troublesome handicap; they find that entry into their own professions and businesses is delayed until naturalization is granted. They find virtually insuperable barriers in arranging normal mortgage accommodation to supplement their own funds and savings in the buying of businesses of their own. Their ability to enter into most kinds of contracts is prejudiced.

The suggestion is made that so soon as they have shown reliability and the promise of becoming good Canadians they should be given some kind of interim status which would at once more closely identify them with the country of their adoption and dignify their position as individuals. The "first papers" which prospective new citizens are able to get in the United States provide these advantages.

GLOBAL SURVEY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

MOSCOW'S announcement of the long-awaited Russo-Chinese treaty is held by observers generally to be far more interesting for what it conceals than for what it discloses.

As Washington officials say, the full import of suspected secret agreements may appear only gradually.

On the face of it the alliance would seem to be the written report of a love-feast, with Russia playing big brother to hard-hit China. However, the big point to my mind is that an agreement has been reached at all.

EXTENDING INFLUENCE

The manner in which Russia has kept extending its sphere of influence over northern China, and particularly in Manchuria, has been in direct opposition to the nationalistic ambitions of the Chinese Communists under leadership of General Mao Tze-Tung. Yet Mao, who personally went to Moscow weeks ago to negotiate this pact, appears from the announcement to have won important concessions to China's sovereignty. We have observed that previous countries which have been brought into the Communist bloc by agreement—like those of eastern Europe—have become satellites of Russia. Their sovereignty rests in Moscow. When Yugoslavia, under leadership of Marshal Tito, reverted to nationalism she was kicked out of the Red fold.

There are, of course, differences between the satellites of Europe and the mighty land space of China with its population of close to 500,000,000. China is just too big and unwieldy to be regimented like one of the Balkan states. Moreover, Russia's tactics have made it clear that she intends to use China as a base for operations to bring all Asia into the Red fold.

OPPOSING POLICY

Diplomatic authorities in Washington say the treaty is designed partly to hamstring the American policy towards China. That policy, as laid down by State Secretary Dean Acheson, is based on the hope of a conflict of interest between Russia and China in north China and especially in Manchuria. If Moscow really hands back to China the railways and ports promised in the treaty, this conflict would be lessened.

Japan figures prominently in the pact, and the Nipponese are worried. Moscow says the treaty is aimed in part at the rebirth of Japanese aggression. The alliance binds Russia and China to full assistance by either if the other is attacked by Japan "or any other state which directly or indirectly would unite in any form with Japan in acts of aggression."

That "any other state" clearly is a pot shot at the U.S. and Britain.

Thanks to modern medical science man may be within sight of an age-old dream, an elixir for long life. The magic drug may turn out to be cortisone, the hormone that eases rheumatic pains and arthritic aches. Scientists of the University of Utah believe—on the basis of experiments carried out by Dr. Thomas F. Dougherty, a specialist in the study of minute structure of tissues—that the assurance of longer life may soon be possible.

If research workers are about to endow the average man with the capacity for greater longevity, it is time that the philosophers and the educationists provided man with quality of mind to endure this long experience in the flesh, and with vocations and hobbies to appease and satisfy this restless and inquiring faculty.

PUBLIC SERVICE, TOO

Over 150 families are comfortably settled in new quarters in the Toronto area as a result of a newspaper promotion scheme. And more are being added at the rate of six or seven each day.

The plan is simple but effective.

Since the first of the year the Toronto Telegram has offered free classified advertising for a week to anyone willing to rent apartments, self-contained flats or houses to families with children.

Here is an example of a newspaper promotion scheme which is also a good piece of public service.

Cabinet Ministers Abroad Are Salesmen For Canada

By GORDON E. LEIGHTON
Victoria Times Parliamentary Correspondent

OTTAWA—When ministers of the government next travel abroad they may be accompanied by their sample cases. Today they almost qualify for representation in the Commercial Travelers' Associations. Salesmanship is almost a sine qua non for ministerial qualification.

Evidence of all this is to be found in the peregrinations of ministers of the Crown during the interval between House sessions. It is further strengthened by their words as well as their deeds in the course of these travels. Strongly accentuated in almost all cases has been the theme "Trade for Canada. What we want and what we offer."

P.M. SETS KEY NOTE

Prime Minister St. Laurent sets the key note. On his recent visit to the Biltmore Hotel, New York City, he set it before the Canadian Society of New York. "We have a special interest in freer multilateral trade and though I am not an economist, that seems to me to mean freer entry to this country both for European exports and our own."

Or again, "It is even more important to the economic strength of the free world that all countries suffering from a dollar shortage should be able to export as freely as possible to North American markets."

In Europe today, Trade Minister Howe is supporting his leader by his visits far and wide in the cause of the development of Canadian trade. At present he is in Italy in the course of an unfettered itinerary that will yet take him some weeks to complete.

Mr. Howe's visit in Europe parallels the world-girdling tour of External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson. In this he lost no opportunity of delving into the possibilities of Canadian trade with Oriental countries.

Excluding China for the time being, for obvious reasons, there were missions in Japan and Burma, India and Pakistan among the more important. The Commonwealth conference presented the opportunity of direct contact with the representatives of Australasia.

James Sinclair of North Vancouver parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Douglas Abbott is easing the solution of financial problems with Yugoslavia and undoubtedly carrying on the mission of trade negotiation while abroad.

In the same cause, Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew of Victoria has been traveling widely in the Orient in the interests, among others, of his department. He has thus been aiding to assist in what appears to be a great trade effort by ministers covering most of the important countries outside the Iron Curtain.

In practically all recent public speeches by members of the government there has existed this tone of pre-occupation with the development of trade.

Realization of the effect of personal salesmanship has been quickly learned, as the plush days of war contracts between the nations that have and those that want, give way to days of competition.

Whether we term these journeys trade missions or diplomatic visits or disguise them with other euphemisms, they are in effect the presentation of Canada as a nation willing and able to sell and to buy on equal and favorable terms with any nation.

Canada Gets New Type Of Radar

MONTREAL (BUP)—The veil was off a phase of Canada's ultra-secret defence planning today following an announcement by Defence Minister Brooke Claxton that Canada has ordered several million dollars' worth of new-type radar equipment.

Claxton told members of a Royal Canadian Air Force radar unit Wednesday night that sets of the "last and most powerful type" of radar had been ordered for use in three new stations and several old ones.

New installations would be at Halifax, Toronto and Vancouver, he said. The aircraft-tracking devices would also be turned over to permanent and reserve air force stations at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Sherbrooke, Shawinigan, Three Rivers and St. John's, Que.

The minister said the new equipment would supplement supplies developed at the end of World War II. In addition, "we have placed orders with Canadian industries totaling a good many million dollars," he said.

Air Force Plan Well Advanced, Reports Claxton

MONTREAL (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton said Wednesday night the initial task of building a "solid framework" for Canada's postwar air force is well advanced and the second phase is already under way.

"This groundwork is well on its way, and we are already moving into the second phase, that of creating the actual fighting force for which we have planned," he said in an address before No. 1 Radar and Communications Unit of the R.C.A.F.

Mr. Claxton empahsized that the building of an operational air force on a peacetime budget is not an overnight job. The first task was not to put squadron after squadron into the air.

It was to set up organization, the solid framework of trained personnel, and adequate facilities to maintain such squadrons when they were established.

"We are placing great emphasis on the air force but not to the point where the proper roles of the navy and army are ignored. Largely because air force equipment is so expensive, we are spending very much more on the air force than on the other two services."

To Visit Canada

KARACHI (Reuter) — Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan will visit Canada as well as the United States during his forthcoming North American tour, it was learned here today. No date has yet been set for the tour, but it is expected the Moslem leader will leave early in May.

OIL FIELDS of the province of Alberta are given recognition in this new 50-cent Canadian stamp, going on sale March 1.

Canadians Win Praise In U.N. Economic Council

LAKE SUCCESS (CP)—Canada's team at the United Nations Economic and Social Council is living up to expectations of other delegations.

When the Dominion ended a two-year council term in 1948, the mapority of its 18 members came forward with praise for Canadian initiative.

After a one-year lapse, Canada was voted back into the council, taking her seat when the winter session opened 10 days ago.

Since then the Canadians have been in the thick of the work, which some U.N. officials describe as the organization's most important in the drive to wipe out causes of war.

Raymond Eudes, 38, Liberal member of the Commons for Montreal-Hochelaga and a newcomer to U.N. halls, heads the delegation. Speaking alternately in English and French, he has driven home Canada's insistence that the U.N. operate efficiently in the fields where it can do most good.

He has two old U.N. hands as alternate delegates: Dr. George Davidson, deputy welfare minister, and Sidney Pierce, deputy minister of trade and commerce.

Davidson, 41, born at Bass River, N.S., and raised in Vancouved, earlier this week tangled with the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions, whose representative denounced the International Labor Organization.

Defending the I.L.O., of which Canada is a charter member, Davidson said the W.F.T.U. spoke only for Russian-bloc governments and was merely trying to mislead the council.

TRADE PROBLEMS

The Montreal-born Pierce, former ambassador to Mexico, has the job of presenting Canada's views on the U.N.'s report on major economic changes in 1949. This is scheduled to be one of the top subjects on the council's 41-item agenda—pointing up the international trade problems and outlining possible solutions.

Hopes Cities Get Good Deal On B.C. Home Building Plan

Post-war days of World War I were recalled in the Legislature Wednesday when Alex. Hope, Coalition member for the Fraser Valley constituency of Delta, dealt with the plan of the Dominion and province to build blocks of houses with co-operation from municipalities.

He was seconding the reply to the Speech from the Throne.

"I hope, Mr. Premier," said Mr. Hope, "that whatever arrangements are finally made, the municipalities will not be left out on a limb as they were after the first war under the 'Better Housing Act'."

He did not give details but said nearly all of the municipalities which took part in the housing program after the Great War lost money.

The Delta member said the municipalities were receiving more financial assistance from the government now than they did eight or nine years ago, but they still had their problems.

"This winter they are having a very definite problem wtih the unemployed employables," he said.

NOT SOLE CAUSE

A lot of the trouble had been brought about by the severe weather, but that was not the sole cause.

Many small part-time farmers in the Fraser Valley were being driven out of business by the low prices of eggs and other produce. Hundreds of poultry producers, particularly in Langley and Surrey, had been forced to sell their flocks, the speaker asserted.

Mr. Hope had words of praise for the public work's department's road building program. The Hope-Princeton Highway was a boon to the people travelling to the Okanagan from the coast.

He would like to see a bottleneck at the junction of the Trans-Canada Highway and King George Highway at Fry's Corner eliminated. There was an eight-mile stretch of the road only 18 feet wide, he said.

The Delta member brought Victoria into his speech. He thought a redistribution of seats in the House was long overdue. Victoria had three representatives for 31,900 registered voters—an average of about 10,600 voters to a member. Vancouver had 25,000 voters to a member.

"But in Delta, I alone represent 35,000 registered voters," he said.

TORONTO (CP) — Television made new progress today. Board of Control granted the request of Toronto firemen to have television sets at downtown halls. Only a week ago the fire-eaters were insisting that TV would never replace dominoes.

Ex-Husband's Spokesman Suffers Amnesia Attack

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — John E. Vernon, spokesman for Ingrid Bergman's divorced husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom, today is in hospital as an amnesia victim.

His wife, Lydia, had reported him missing from their Sherman Oaks, Calif., home since Sunday.

St. Luke's Hospital said Vernon was "in an extremely upset condition."

The attending physician, who asked that his name not be used, said it did not appear that Vernon "is going to have too much trouble."

He added: "He is somewhat confused, and does not remember much of anything. He is quite disoriented."

Of a total area in Pakistan of 114,400,000 acres, more than one-third is under cultivation.

'Decision In Germany'

By Gen. Lucius D. Clay

Believes Security Against Germany No Longer Enough

(This is the final installment of the story of the crucial years in the Cold War with Russia, condensed from Gen. Clay's book published by Doubleday & Co. Inc. Gen. Clay for two years immediately following the end of the war served as deputy military governor of U.S. occupied Germany. In 1947, he became commander of all U.S. forces in Europe, a post he held until retirement last year.)

THE FRITZ WARNER MACHINE TOOL PLANT in Berlin was one of the 682 plants marked for dismantling by the British and Americans This plant was first stripped by the Russians. It produced anti-aircraft guns for Germany during the war. The picture was taken in 1947.

Security is both abstract and relative. The desire for it is shared by all peace-loving nations and by the vast majority of all peoples. In its absence political and economic unrest are to be expected.

When the armies of Hitler and the Nazi regime surrendered on May 7, 1945, the victorious nations were determined that a Germany which twice within a quarter of a century had embarked on wars of conquest should never again be capable of similar action.

With the Allies and the neutrals already pledged to the organization of the United Nations, it then seemed that lasting peace could be attained if the known aggressive power of modern times could be reduced in strength to no longer present a potential threat to the world.

This led logically and naturally to the adoption of security measures against Germany which are fully adequate as long as there remains the intent on the part of the responsible nations for their enforcement. No measures are of greater value than this intent which is essential to their accomplishment.

GERMANY DISARMED

These measures within Germany came about first from the total defeat of Germany's armed forces and the unconditional surrender of the German government. Its armies were disbanded completely, its military and paramilitary organizations dissolved and their records destroyed. Germany was rendered as defenseless as a nation can be, except for its man power trained and skilled in combat but useless for war unless equipped by others.

Man power alone is of little value in modern warfare. There must be a supporting economy to provide the tremendous quantities of material needed to array it in formidable fighting units.

To reduce the economic ability of Germany to support a modern fighting machine, it was deprived of much agricultural land in the east and also of the substantial industrial and coal-bearing areas in Silesia and the Saar. Its territory was decreased by 43,500 square miles, its industrial potential by a substantial amount.

Within the reduced area which remains to Germany, there was an officially estimated population as of Jan. 1, 1949, of 67.9 million persons to be supported, almost as many as lived in the original area.

REDUCE WAR POTENTIAL

In addition to these general measures, specific measures have been devised to reduce Germany's war potential and agencies have been established to see that they are carried out.

These steps include the removal of war and industrial plants and of gold as reparations, the placing of prohibitions and restrictions on industries readily adaptable to war production, the breaking up of cartels and excessive concentrations of power and the liquidation of Germany's external assets.

The Occupation Statute enables the High Commission and the two principal security agencies; namely, the Ruhr Authority and the Military Security Board, to enforce the agreed measures.

TO REMOVE 744 PLANTS

The reparations program, when completed, will have resulted in the removal of 744 plants from Germany.

Since these plants were largely in the heavy industrial or basic chemical categories, they have reduced appreciably the potential of German industry for the immediate future, and to considerable degree for as long as the limitations are maintained.

In addition, one must consider not only the industrial capacity lost through transfer of territory but also the large, if unknown, removals from east Germany.

Certainly, there is not in Germany today industrial capacity beyond that necessary to its daily sustenance, and a diversion of this capacity to war production would bring great want to the German people.

It is a far different picture from that presented at the close of World War I.

ECONOMIC POWER BROKEN UP

A third specific measure which the occupying powers considered necessary for security against Germany was the breaking up of cartels and excessive concentrations of economic power.

Our right in this field remains a reserved power in the occupation statute so that further measures may be taken if desired by the occupation authorities.

NEIGHBORS' RIGHT TO SECURITY

Certainly, Germany's neighbors have the right to demand security against the nation which has caused them so much destruction and grief. Their concern and their unwillingness to accept German economic and political recovery until adequate security arrangements had been made were understandable.

Prior to the adoption of the Atlantic Pact, security was guaranteed by the troops of the occupying powers. The participation of the United States was assured by the presence of its forces in Germany.

With the formation of Western European Military Union, signed on March 17, 1948, in Brussels, some of the fears of a revived Germany were dissipated. But it was not until the Atlantic Pact was signed in Washington on April 8, 1949, that western Europe felt assured of United States participation in a common defense against possible future German aggression and that the atmosphere was finally created which permitted the Foreign Ministers of France and the United Kingdom and our Secretary of State to quickly agree on a common German policy.

OTHER AGGRESSIVE FORCES

There can be no question but that the security measures proposed against Germany combined with the broad guarantees of the Atlantic Pact suffice as long as enforced to prevent Germany alone from again becoming an aggressor nation.

However, as I observed earlier, security is a relative term and its provision against Germany alone no longer means security against aggression. Other aggressive forces have risen to threaten the peace of the world.

Germany is not included in the Atlantic Pact. It is defenseless against aggression from the east except as it is protected by the forces of the United States and western Europe now in occupation.

These observations raise still unresolved questions to which I do not propose the answers, although answered they must be by the responsible statesmen.

BROADER SECURITY QUESTIONS

Here are the broader questions of security to which I refer:

Can Germany be left defenseless, subject to conquest and exploitation by others who would use its man power and its skills for world aggression?

Are we prepared to maintain armed forces in Germany indefinitely to prevent its easy conquest by others, or are the Atlantic Pact signatory powers prepared to guarantee the defense of Germany indefinitely?

If the security of Germany is to be assured by the signatory powers to the Atlantic Pact, will Germany be expected to contribute to the common security?

COULD TIP THE SCALES

These are not questions to be decided hastily, nor are they to be avoided because of animosities and apprehensions.

Unless peace and stability can be achieved through a United Nations with adequate strength to maintain them, then we must recognize that peace and stability remain only so long as there is a balance of power which makes the chance of success of aggressive war unlikely.

The part that Germany is to play in such a balance of power could well tip the scales one way or the other, and the wisdom of western statesmen must be applied to finding a solution which, through the years, makes it a contribution to the maintenance of peace.

Security against Germany is important. Indeed, but only to the extent to which it contributes to world security.

Dr. Neil Stewart Named Health Officer Pro Tem

Oak Bay Council has appointed Dr. Neil R. Stewart as temporary medical health officer for the municipality, A. D. Finlay, municipal clerk, said Wednesday night.

Dr. Stewart will hold the position during the illness of Dr. W. P. Walker, who is on leave of absence.

Percy E. Moir, former councillor, was reappointed as the Oak Bay representative on the Royal Jubilee Hospital board of directors at the Wednesday night council meeting.

Before Canada could become one of the world's great wheat producing countries, Dominion agriculturists had to deevlop a number of new grain varieties to meet conditions in the west.

Oak Bay Share Of School Costs Again Criticized By Reeve

What appeared on the surface to be a routine business communication, the school board's estimate of ordinary and extraordinary expenditures for 1950, drew some short but pointed comments from Reeve P. A. Gibbs at Oak Bay Council meeting Wednesday night.

"As I said at the recent school board wage hearing, I think Oak Bay is being seriously discriminated against in the matter of school costs. I hope the Department of Education is going to do something about this situation soon," he said.

Reeve Gibbs noted Oak Bay pays $199 per year for each child for education, while Victoria pays $159 and Saanich and Esquimalt $90 each.

In the letter, school board secretary, T. L. Christie, informed council the municipality's share of education costs, based on 1949 taxable values, was $236,905. Total to be raised by the board was $1,541,347.

Detailed copies of estimates were enclosed with the letter for the study of council members.

Allarie is also alleged to have shot and killed her husband, William Delbridge, at the same time.

The hanging will take place at Headingly Jail May 2.

The assize court jury deliberated nearly five hours before bringing in the verdict. Allarie showed no sign of emotion as he heard the sentence.

Young Look For Air Age Predicted

By MARGUERITE DALZIEL
Women's Department, Victoria Times

Many wondrous and amazing things are in store for women in this next half century—an era when no one will look old . . . when slender, attractive figures will be taken for granted . . . clothes will be few, and better designed, and inexpensive enough to be discarded after a few wearings.

These are the predictions of seemingly ageless world-famous beauty authority, Mme. Helena Rubinstein, Princess Gourelli to her friends.

She gives a polite phooey to people who sigh over the good old days and cite the golden years of the 'twenties.

She declares firmly, "right now we are living in the most exciting and thrilling time in the history of the world . . . the atomic age . . . the age of completely emancipated women."

Born in an era when the mad "'twenties" were just something of which I'd heard my parents reminiscing, I'm inclined to agree with the beauty expert. Especially when I look back in photo albums and catch a glimpse of what the well-dressed flapper was wearing.

Most of us will agree, too, with Mme. Rubinstein when she says that "women have been free too long to go back to the ugly flat chests and hobble skirts of earlier days."

Anything new, if it is unbecoming, is only a temporary fashion highlight, she says, and excuses the extreme fashions of the past year or two, as "only reflections of the general world unrest."

The beauty expert promises us all kinds of wonderful things in the next half century, and warns us that "we should be ready for anything."

NO ONE LOOKS OLD

One of her most thought-provoking and fascinating predictions is that "nobody will look old."

She backs this statement with the theory that with dramatic new discoveries in science and medicine, particularly in the field of glands, women will learn to be remarkably preserved to a very advanced age and time will really stand still for beauty.

"People will live much longer; there will be less illness, pain and problems of body and mind, as science teaches us how to conquer illness and disease.

Manner of living of rich and poor will gradually converge and there will be less and less gap in appearance of the rich woman and working girl.

In her mind's eye she pictures for the future, "homes made largely of glass, treated to let in life-giving rays of sun . . . we shall live, eat, sleep and entertain more in the open . . . cities will be decentralized gradually and we shall all live in outlying country."

Eating habits will receive new treatment in the wonderful world of the future, according to Mme. Rubinstein.

Food will be reduced to less quanity, consist of fresh fruits and vegetables of sunlight and beauty-giving quality.

Figures will be slender as women will know more of nutrition and problems of overweight will be solved completely for it will be easy to keep slim with new foods and vitamin discoveries.

AIR INFLUENCE

Fashions in clothing and make-up will be influenced by the "great air age." Clothes will be designed for light and speed in travel and convenience.

Few garments will be worn but they will be of better design . . . made from synthetic materials and so inexpensive that they can be thrown away after a few wearings.

Makeup will be quick to acquire and every woman will be taught carefully what are the right preparations for her individual needs and how to use them correctly.

Mme. Rubinstein tells of the many subtle and radical changes in fashions and makeups she has seen since she first came to America in 1915.

Then she was "shocked to see the ugly faces and crude make-up of that time . . . purple noses, dead-white faces, grey lips and generally colorless, ugly look everywhere . . . women were heavily veiled, she says, and adds, "I don't wonder."

"In the 'twenties," she continues, "face powder came in a single shade. There was no such thing as a foundation; women applied rouge directly to the cheeks in two round circles and eyes were beaded with thick mascara that gave one the appearance of a clown."

MAKEUP MATURE

"Makeup has indeed grown up and become adult and we have gone through many cycles to arrive at the natural beautiful look."

Looking ahead 50 years, Mme. Rubinstein believes that women will handle varied careers with ease and assurance.

They will own their own planes, automobiles, ranches, racehorses and estates, she prophecies.

She leaves us something to think about when she states that "women of the future will be a dominating influence in every phase of life.

Beauty authority Mme. Helena Rubinstein, in private life the Princess Gourelli, has a fabulously beautiful Park Avenue home in New York and a country home in Connecticut.

Hard Work Making Love, Actor Claims

The millions of moviegoers who think leading men enjoy making love on the screen have another guess coming, according to film star Bill Lundigan.

The actor, having made cinematic love to Jeanne Crain, Olivia de Havilland, Deanna Durbin, Hedy Lamarr, Bette Davis, Donna Reed and a score of other Hollywood glamour girls, claims it's hard work.

Lundigan, whose most recent screen love-making with Miss Crain, can be seen in "Pinky" today at the Atlas Theatre, says he intends no reflection on any of the actresses to whom he has shown a great affection, cinematically speaking.

Latest Bette Davis Vehicle At Odeon

In a vehicle almost tailored specially for the great acting talent that she is, Bette Davis will appear on the Odeon screen today in "Beyond the Forest," an amazing story of an ambitious woman who uses love to gain her ends.

I Love My Doctor

By Evelyn Barkins

CHAPTER 35

THEN I PREPARED the case itself as if I had been retained to defend her in an axe murder. I wrote out all my points, listed the pros and cons, went over all my evidence (a sister who had heard the original threat, a son-in-law who had witnessed the stolen items in the accuser's trunk after the date of the supposed theft, and three co-operative neighbors who were ready to swear to Mrs. Slater's husband's cruelty and eccentricity), and last, I recited my entire case from beginning to end for John, who was supposed to interrupt like a doubtful judge, and cross-examine like a hungry district attorney.

The night before the trial I scarcely slept and kept poor John awake imagining the worst. I showed up in court the next morning in my most imposing clothes (on which the skirt zipper under the jacket no longer closed). Fortunately for all of us, with the witnesses I had, Mrs. Slater stood as much chance of being convicted as a Perry Mason protege, and everything ended happily.

'NEVER AGAIN'

"But never again!" I swore to John in the two days I took to recuperate. "Criminal law is too upsetting for me. In any other kind of case, the worst that happens is that your client loses money. In this work, somebody may actually go to jail. That's terrible."

As time gradually passed, however, I found that I had acquired a middle-sized group of faithful clients, and I spent many pleasant afternoons drawing up wills and contracts, starting one divorce case, one separation case, and suing four insurance companies in accident cases. I even began methodically to send letters on my majestic legal stationery to some of John's delinquent debtors.

"It's no use," John said, when I began this. "You know what it's like getting patients to pay."

I knew. The reluctance to part with any amount of money at all for medical services was as deeply ingrained as the instinct to evade income tax. It was John's contention that no grocer would ever deign to tolerate the dead bills that any doctor habitually carries, and he ventured to wonder if a free loaf of bread or a can of tomato juice with each visit might not produce better financial results.

HAD MAGIC EFFECT

Nevertheless, I wrote my letters, and we were both astounded to discover in many pleasing instances that the threat of the mighty hands of the law, in the form of the bold Counselor-at-Law on my stationery, was as effective in producing results as a storm trooper's former triumphant missions.

Eventually, as my size continued to increase, my legal activities became necessarily curtailed.

"Look how big I'm getting," I told John one night as we prepared for bed.

"Perfectly natural," was the disinterested reply, which made me feel as important as a fifth leg on a chair.

"Say, look here," I said, with mounting annoyance, "you're supposed to be looking after me, and you never do."

John slowly removed another shoe before replying. "When did I take your blood pressure last?" he asked, wriggling his toes.

"Six weeks ago," I said.

"All right," he said. "Just a minute."

He went into the office, and came back and took my blood pressure as I sat in bed.

"Is that all?" I asked.

"Sure," he said. "You're feeling well, aren't you? You take your own weight from time to time, and know enough to keep it down. So that's all."

"But I don't understand," I protested. "In practice, the women come in regularly every two or three weeks, carrying their little bottles as if they were bearing sacrifices to the heathen God of Fertility."

ALL UNNECESSARY

"Look, sweetie," said John, stifling a yawn, "can I help it if the average woman today expects a workout with everything but a crystal ball? Doctors give them what they want, and since it can't hurt them either, I'm not going to start a crusade for re-education. I do everything that's necessary. A normal prenatal course is nothing more to get excited about than a wart on the end of your finger."

There was nothing more to say, so I went to sleep. My ego did not suffer greatly, however, because basically the whole business seemed quite unreal and I watched my own progress with the impassible smugness of a man who has the indisputable and serious conviction that it was all happening to somebody else. Most women, in the office and out, would take one look and launch into a descriptive account in technicolor of their own experiences.

FEAR PERSISTS

The gory details I heard were more than a little frightening. It didn't really help much to go through the old "My mother had babies, my grandmother had babies, and that's how everyone else came here, too," routine.

Nor was John's professional "natural function" idea any consolation either. The fear persisted, like a stubborn stain, and in desperation I borrowed John's textbook on obstetrics and read it through from cover to cover. Natural function indeed! After wading through the hideous complications listed by Dr. De Lee, I was ready to order a tombstone, and chloroform myself with the first pain.

As for the gruesome illustrations, I turned away with the nauseated conviction that if those pictures were ever made more public, it would result in race suicide.

In a final demoralizing step, I took to the panacean, "happily ever after" articles in the popular ladies' magazines, like a dope addict returning to his opium; which treatises although thoroughly berated by John and his colleagues, reaffirmed my confidence.

Premier Praises White Cane Club For Empire Work

A tribute to the Victoria White Cane Club for its work with the blind and its efforts for Canada and the Commonwealth, through it Empire information section, has been paid by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The Prime Minister in a letter to E. V. Farmer, secretary of the Empire Information for the Victoria White Cane Club, received Wednesday, said he was interested and pleased to learn of the work being done.

STRENGTHENS TIES

"Such work as this helps not only to strengthen the ties which bind us togther as a nation and Commonwealth but also to safeguard us against forces which are antagonistic to our democratic way of life," the Prime Minister wrote.

He spoke of the group's work for the blind in Victoria and vicinity and asked that his greetings and wishes for the continued success of their worthwhile project, be conveyed to the members.

The letter was read at the Wednesday meeting of the White Cane Club in Prince Robert House. One meeting a month is devoted to empire information. Dr. T. A. Richard spoke on "Our Canadian Background," at the last meeting.

Nova Scotia Session

HALIFAX (CP) — Premier Angus L. Macdonald said Wednesday the first session of the 21st Nova Scotia Legislature will open in March. The definite date depends on printers completing the annual dapartmental reports and estimates.

HONORED BY BLIND at White Cane Club meeting Wednesday was Mrs. R. P. Kingscote, one of a number of volunteer motorists who transport sightless people to and from weekly meetings. Mrs. Kingscote has been a volunteer driver three years, but is leaving this week to take up residence in New Zealand. Gift as token of esteem and affection of club was presented to Mrs. Kingscote by G. Allen, White Cane Club vice-president. Eighty-three persons who attended presentation ceremony constituted record attendance for club meeting.

Canada's Vegetable Growers Asking Lower U.S. Barriers

OTTAWA (CP)—Fruit and vegetable producers are demanding the government find ways of placing Canadian producers on a "more equitable trading basis" with United States growers.

Seeking lower American tariffs on all vegetables, the producers stress particularly the need for better U.S. tariff deals on such items as lettuce, spinach, potatoes and onions.

Their demands were incorporated in a heavy file of resolutions discussed and adopted as the Canadian Horticultural Council wound up a three-day annual convention here Wednesday.

Roswell Thomson of Abbotsford, Que., was elected as the council's new president, succeeding R. J. Leslie of Kentville, N.S.

The council was asked to petition the government to request a decrease of the U.S. duty on all vegetables from 25 per cent to 12½. The Canadian duty is 10 per cent.

Way Open For Agreement If Russia Changes—Bevin

LONDON (CP)—Foreign Secretary Bevin Wednesday night expressed opposition to "stunt proposals" id ealing with control of atomic energy, but left the door slightly ajar for possible future negotiation with Russia.

Commenting in a political broadcast on the problem of dealing with Russia only one day after Winston Churchill had proposed in a political speech that a new effort be made to "bridge the gulf" between the East and the West, Bevin said:

"This is not a problem which can be solved by any stunt proposals. We must continue to work for agreement through the atomic committee of the United Nations."

Bevin then listed other problems ranging over the entire field of Britain's international relations and said:

"If Russia shows the slightest change of attitude and indicates her readiness to settle these relationships and give the world complete peace, then we shall be ready to enter into discussions with the object of abolishing the possibility of war and enabling all nations to co-operate with each other."

Bevin's speech was broadcast by BBC as one of five Labor Party speeches to be put on the air during the campaign leading to the general election Feb. 23.

Churchill, wartime prime minister, leads the Conservative opposition. He urged in Edinburgh Tuesday night that a new Big Three conference be called to seek a truce in hatreds between the eastern and western worlds.

Bevin took some pains to point out Britain's unity in foreign policy with the United States.

He declared Britain is "in constant touch with the United States government on this whole problem (atomic energy) and, in view of the very heavy responsibilities which rest with them, we must consult them at every step."

U.S. Committee Votes To End Subsidy On Potatoes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate agriculture committee voted Wednesday to end United States government price supports for potatoes unless the growers accept strict marketing controls to prevent surplus production.

The Senate majority leader, Scott Lucas of Illinois, sponsored the move. Under the Lucas proposal, the price props would be pulled out until marketing agreements are put into effect.

The committee's action climaxed a rising clamor for steps to deal with the excess potato situation—which Agriculture Secretary Brannan says has cost the government $500,000,000 in recent years.

Would Go Home To Die

MONTREAL (CP) — Nancy Bozich, pretty 21-year-old Canadian, wants to come back home from Yugoslavia to die.

Nancy's plight was made known Wednesday in a letter received by a brother living in Montreal. It was written by Nancy's mother.

Nancy was one of several thousand Canadians of Yugoslav extraction who set out for the old folks' homeland in 1948. All had high hopes for the future. The mother's letter filled in the story.

Last year Nancy was thrown into jail after delivering a petition to Canadian authorities signed by hundreds who want to return to this country.

She remained in jail three months before her case was brought to the attention of Canadian officials in Belgrade. She finally was tried and sentenced to three months in prison.

Not long ago she was released, broken in spirit and seriously ill. Doctors have given up hope for her. Now she wants relatives here to appeal to the government and arrange her return.

But the Canadian passports the Bozich family had have been taken from them and new applications have been turned down by Yugoslav authorities.

Nancy's brother Sam, who lives in Montreal with his wife and five-year-old son, plans an appeal to the External Affairs Department. He said he realized that those who went to Yugoslavia were warned by the Canadian government they would be jeopardizing their citizenship.

Insurance Plan Wins Praise In Opening Debate

In the first two speeches from the floor of the 22nd Legislative Assembly on Wednesday the province's hospital insurance received bouquets.

A. D. Turnbull and Alex. Hope, mover and seconder of the reply to the Speech from the Throne, both felt the administration of the service needed changes "to iron out the rough spots," but basically the scheme was sound.

Mr. Turnbull, Cln.-Rossland-Trail, said he felt confident the service had given the people satisfaction in protecting them from the hospital portion of the cost of illness.

"I am convinced," he said, "that a very large proportion of the people are completely satisfied with the plan."

The Trail member said he was certain the government was prepared to bear a fair share of the cost of expanding hospitals to provide more beds.

HIGHEST PRAISE

Mr. Hope, Cln.-Delta, had this to say: "Many people have come to me during the past year who have had hospitalization under the scheme and they have had nothing but the highest praise for this service."

He wondered if it might be better to add per cent to the 3 per cent sales tax to cover cost of the service. This would eliminate ollection of premiums.

Mr. Hope thought recipients of war veterans' allowances and their dependents should be exempted from paying the hosptial insurance premiums the same as old-age pensioners.

Jaywalkers Take Care

Short-cutters usually travel in bunches. These girls have spotted a market stand across the street where potatoes are a nickel cheaper, and they're making for the bargains on the shortest possible line.

New Member Pleads Cause Of Senior Citizens In Need

A new member of the Legislature pleaded the case of older citizens in need when he gave the opening address in the House Wednesday in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

A. D. Turnbull, Cln., Rossland-Trail, said the extra $10 a month given old-age pensioners last year was welcomed by everyone, but assistance should go further.

The province should be prepared to give every assistance and co-operation to the Federal government toward the establishment of a Dominion-wide contributory superannuation scheme, he said.

In hand with the pension question was a problem of employment for citizens, men and women, over the age of 45, the speaker continued.

The state and industry must co-operate to provide useful jobs for these people and one source would be in the creation of new secondary industries through manufacturing, fabricating and processing primary products—wood, metals, food—for export and for home consumption.

DEPENDENT ON EXPORT

In this connection too, said Mr. Turnbull, about 40 per cent of the people of the province were dependent on the export of the primary products and he thought: "Our economy would be more stable if they were processed before being exported."

Timber should be manufactured to the highest possible degree before export, he continued. Metals and minerals should be fabricated in to articles ready for use.

Mr. Turnbull said the province's public works department deserved highest commendation for keeping open to traffic through the hard winter the new Hope-Princeton Highway.

It was a fine highway said Mr. Turnbull, but it only reached the Okanagan.

The people from the great Kootenay and Crow's Nest areas were still drawn by U.S. highways to Spokane and other southern centres when, if they had a link with the Hope-Princeton artery, they would be drawn to Vancouver and the B.C. coastal area.

Mr. Turnbull urged the government to co-operate with the U.S. government to bring about the fullest possible development of the Columbia River basin of which his constituency was a part.

"This government would be well advised to seek to increase the production and the prosperity made possible by the power from the Kootenay and Columbia rivers," he said.

From the Press Gallery

Spectators Enjoy Opening Tilts

By Lloyd Baker

There was more than the usual amount of side-play at a first regular sitting of a Legislature when the 1950 House assembled Wednesday to hear first replies to the Speech from the Throne.

The public galleries enjoyed the heckling and the seats "upstairs" will be at a premium like they were on opening day Tuesday if the back-talk tempo increases. And it probably will as the session progresses.

As it was there were many spectators on hand to see Madam Speaker in action and to hear speeches from Trail's young-looking Douglas Turnbull and the Fraser Valley farmer's stalwart, Alex Hope.

Ruddy-faced Dr. J. J. Gillis of Yale got the goat of Mr. Hope when he laughed at claims the sale of margarine was ruining dairy farmers.

"Oh, no," said the doctor.

"Oh yes. Oh Yes! OH YES!!" returned Mr. Hope.

"Milk diverted to by-products brings less return to the farmer as it competes with margarine," he contended.

The doctor needled Mr. Turnbull too, when the Trail member said certain "minor difficulties" in the administration of the hospital insurance service now were being surmounted.

"Minor? You mean major," he called across to Mr. Turnbull.

But the quiet-spoken engineer of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company refused to be ruffled.

"Many minor shortcomings are being rectified," he repeated.

The Yale member was bicycling backwards at another point when he interrupted Mr. Hope who was speaking of the recent Dominion-Provincial conference on proposed amendments to the Canadian constitution.

Mr. Hope was congratulating Premier Johnson on his "co-operative approach" in the difficult task of amending the constituting.

He took Dr. Gillis' remarks, unheard in the gallery, as a slight against the Premier and the doctor was quick to jump to his feet and tell one and all he had been misunderstood.

Opposition Leader Harold Winch created a bit of a stir as the House was adjourning when he used his deep knowledge of Legislature rules and procedures to put the Premier and Attorney-General Gordon Wismer on the spot.

The Attorney-General had offered some friendly advice on moving adjournment on Throne Speech debate. The C.C.F. chief misunderstood.

Rising to his feet and in caustic tone, Mr. Winch asked if it was the government's plan to change the rules of the House.

He had moved adjournment on the Throne Speech debate but apparently the Attoarney-General thought it should be done again. On top of that a traditional resolution for a first session of a Legislature had failed to appear on the agenda at the opening day ceremony.

"What goes?" the Opposition Leader asked.

Premier Johnson replied the government had no intention to establish new precedents or new interpretations of rules of the House. He thought Mr. Winch had misunderstood the Attorney-General.

"That's fine," said the Opposition Leader, "but what about the resolution?"

"I don't know what you're talking about," the Premier replied.

The resolution, it was learned later, reads: "That if it shall appear that any person hath been elected or returned a member of this House, or endeavored so to be by bribery or other corrupt practices, this House will proceed with the utmost severity against all such persons as should have been wilfully oncerned in such bribery or other corrupt practices."

There were two seats in the Legislative Chamber vacant for the sitting—those of Charles T. Beard, the Coalition member for Esquimalt, and Leigh F. Stevenson, Coalition, Vancouver Point Grey.

Mr. Beard is in hospital recovering from a bout with the 'flu and Mr. Stevenson was grounded by bad weather at Vancouver.

Mr. Stevenson is the former Air Vice-Marshal who commanded Western Air Command Headquarters of the R.C.A.F. when it was situated at the Belmont Building here during World War II. He had flown to Vancouver after the opening ceremony Tuesday and was planning to return by air Wednesday morning.

Many members ears pricked up at a statement made by Mr. Turnbull in his Throne Speech reply.

Brother of Mr. Hope, Ernest, who is a member of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Ottawa, will appreciate the Delta member's remarks against sale of margarine. The federation has been a stiff opponent of the butter substitute.

It was inevitable — connection of the election of Mrs. Nancy Hodges as Madam Speaker with St. Valentine's Day. Yes, it was on the day of hearts and flowers that the second Victoria member was elevated to the honored position.

Said Mr. Turnbull: "This election on St. Valentine's Day should be interpreted as a tribute to the women in public life who are making such an important contribution to the public good."

Farmers Hard Hit, Says Delta Member

Farmers of B.C. are swallowing bitter medicine the Legislature was told Wednesday.

Alex. Hope, Delta member, who operates a mixed farm at Langley, said the farmer felt badly to see export markets slipping away to countries not overly friendly to the Allied nations in World War II.

"The agriculture picture is not too bright for the near future," he said.

Branches of the industry hardest hit were in poultry production, fruit growing and hog raising.

Farmers felt bitter, he continued, when they saw their prices falling while at the same time other groups of workers were striking for higher wages and getting them.

Margarine Ruining Dairying, Says M.L.A.

Oleomargarine is ruining the dairy industry, Alex. Hope, Cln.-Delta, said in the Legislature Wednesday.

"It's just as I predicted last year when legislation was enacted to allow manufacture and sale of margarine," he said.

Nearly 4,000 milk producers in the Fraser Valley alone were losing 40 cents on each can of milk they shipped, because of margarine.

Mr. Hope explained: Milk prices remained the same. But the 4,000 producers could not sell all their milk in fluid. Much of it had to be manufactured into canned milk, powdered milk, and other products. As soon as margarine appeared on the market, prices of these other products dropped. The decrease resulted in the 40 cents loss per can of milk.

Surprise—Football's Back Again

Jerry Scott (24), halfback of Celeri's All-Stars, drives in low to upset Don Brown (1), LeBaron's half, after a short gain early in the second quarter of the Bob Celeri-Eddie LeBaron post-season football game played at Lodi, Calif. The LeBarons won the game 7 to 6.

Gordon Signs $35,000 Form; Furillo Holdout

NEW YORK (UP)—Joe Gordon of Cleveland beamed over his 1950 contract today while Brooklyn's Carl Furillo steamed over his.

Gordon, at his Eugene, Ore., home, revealed he had signed his contract and was "very satisfied with the terms." Previously, the veteran 35-year-old second baseman announced he might play in the Coast League if the Indians did not meet his demands.

The document, which did not include a bonus clause, was believed to call for $35,000, the same amount the semi-bald slugger received last season.

Gordon suffered from a protracted batting slump in 1949 and finished a luke-warm .251 percentage.

Furillo on the other hand, looked at his $15,000 offer at his Stony Creek Mills, Pa., home today and said he will keep on looking until the Dodgers come across with "about $25,000."

HAD GOOD SEASON

Furillo's .324 batting mark last season was bettered only by teammate Jackie Robinson and Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Branch Rickey Jr. stopped by to see me a week ago," said Furillo, "and told me the Dodgers could go for $2,500 more than the $12,500 they offered originally.

"I didn't take it. Would you?"

Furillo, one of the vital cogs in Brooklyn's climb to the pennant, said, "I'm just going to sit pat. The next move will have to come from Rickey.

"I'm not worried in the least. I figure I had a good year and I hope to have an even better one this season. That groin injury which bothered me during the world series is healed now and I feel perfect.

"I'll feel even better," he grinned, "when the club decides to shell out a little more money."

Alberni Fighters Enter Silver Gloves

Entries from five Alberni fighters for the Vancouver Island Silver Gloves boxing tournament at the Armories Saturday night were received today.

The entrants are: Jerry Golden, 90 pounds; Bernard Hamilton, 70 pounds; Harold Dawcette, 60 pounds; Billy Hamilton, 70 pounds; Robert Crossland, 80 pounds.

Hayes Nets Big Goal For Vernon Hockey Triumph

VERNON (CP)—Playing with their backs to the wall after a succession of losses, Vernon Canadians Tuesday night gained a 3-to-2 victory over Kelowna Packers in a Mainline-Okanagan Hockey League game.

The win left the Canucks with a .500 average, still in fourth place in the standings.

The rejuvenated Canucks went ahead 1 to 0 in the first period, raced into a 2-to-0 lead early in the second, only to have the hard-skating Packers tie up the contest later in the period.

With just over a minute remaining, George Hayes took a pass at the red line and raced in on LaFace, pulling him out neatly for the winning goal.

Vernon goal scorers in the hectic go were Stecyk, Jakes and Hayes. Jim Middleton and Gacek picked up Kelowna markers.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens announced that winger Gerry Plamondon has been sent to Cincinnati. He will play with the American Hockey Association club for the remainder of the season.

Four Changes Announced In Tide Line-up

Four changes have been announced in Victoria's Crimson Tide rugby team for Saturday's match with Vancouver at Macdonald Park, the second of the McKechnie Cup series for the local fifteen.

Derek Hyde-Lay will move to fullback with Harry Olsen taking over Hyde-Lay's spot on the three quarter line.

Harry Marks has been replaced on the wing by John Newton. Bob Hutchison and Lorne Prevost round out the three line.

Gerry Main remains at five-eighths with Warren Pready at scrum half.

Albie Williams and Harry Turner will replace Nixon and John Olson in the scrum with the other forwards remaining the same. They are Mullholland, Kerr, Brunwell, Blythe, Bolton and Mill.

Nixon, Olson and Young are spares.

VANCOUVER LINEUP

Vancouver's rep rugby team is a well-balanced fifteen with a mixture of youth and experience.

The real veterans of the squad are fullback Lloyd Williams, captain Buzz Moore, Barrie Morris and forward Harvey Allen. The rookies are Lionel Feeney, Danny Oliver and Eddie Hamilton.

On the three-quarter line will be ex-Varsity performer Don Nesbitt, Bob Annabelle, Feeney and Dave Storey with Hamilton at five-eighths and Oliver at scrum half.

In the scrum are Moore, Morris, Allen, Alex Mahood, Lionel Jenks, Ernie Norman, Jim Hamilton and Dutch Gildermaster.

Reserves are Bill Dunbar, Gerry Lockhart, Doug Smart, Eric Cardinal, John Brandwood and Jim Tate.

The mainland fifteen has been undergoing weeks of intensive indoor training and head coach Johnny Calland and scrum coach Jack Wight have high hopes for the club.

Plan Civic Welcome For Salmon, Humber

Peter Salmon and Bruce Humber will be the "toast of the town" at a civic welcome planned by Mayor Percy George and members of the city council.

Although no definite date has been set for their return from New Zealand, Salmon, the swimmer, and Humber, the coach, will be officially welcomed home.

The Mayor said some form of a momento—likely in the form of a medal would be presented to Salmon, winner of the 110-yard free-style event in the recent British Empire Games, and recognition will also be given Humber.

Durnan Thinks About Retiring From Hockey

MONTREAL (CP)—This is Bill Durnan's last season in hockey—if a decent business proposition comes along. And he has one in sight.

The big goalie of Montreal Canadiens said he is serious about retiring. He was 35 years old last month, although the record books show no signs of him slipping.

"Of course I have my family to consider," said Durnan. "At the same time I know I can't go on forever and I've got to think about the future. I've been in this game a long time.

"If there's a decent business opportunity I am certainly ready to take it and leave hockey. There is one tentative proposition now. If it materializes I am retiring."

This is Durnan's seventh season in the big time. He was a sensation from the start and won the Vezina Trophy in five of the last six N.H.L. campaigns. He is aiming again this season for the money and trophy that go to the goalie whose team has the lowest goals-against average.

Does he worry about the fight for the Vezina award?

"Certainly I do; any goalkeeper does," said Durnan with a grin. "With all that money riding on it, who wouldn't?"

With the trophy goes $1,000 from the league.

Great Calumet Runners Headed For Another $1,000,000 Season

NEW YORK (AP)—Those galloping gold mines the Calumet Farm calls horses are well on the way to another $1,000,000-plus season in stacking up race track swag.

In just one month and a half of the 1950 campaign, Calumet already has knocked off close to $250,000 in purses. And this without much monetary aid from the star attractions, Citation and Coaltown.

In the last three years, Calumet horses have won more than $1,000,000 each season.

With a split stable battling for dollars in California and Florida, Warren Wright's financiers have tucked $245,345 into the sock already this year.

The chief keeper-of-the-wolf-from-the-door is Ponder, the stable's surprising 1949 Kentucky Derby winner. In his first two starts at Santa Anita Park in January, Ponder ran third and fifth. Then the four-year-old colt began collecting.

Ponder won the $100,000 Santa Anita Maturity Jan. 28, and last Saturday grabbed the $50,000 San Antonio Handicap. Of the $214,850 salted away by the California branch of the Calumet Bank and Trust Company, Ponder has accounted for $120,500. Not bad for a horse that could earn only $400 as a two-year-old in 1948.

Lowly Peanut Barred From Seal's Stadium

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—"Buy me some peanuts and crackerjack . . ."

Not any more, pal. At least, not any more in San Francisco. The Pacific Coast League Seals today barred the sale of peanuts in their baseball park.

Too expensive, club president Paul Fagan said. It costs $20,000 worth of janitors a year to clean up the mess.

Fagan admitted that he doesn't mind ripping into a goober or two himself at the ball park, but said he figured it out the other day—"it costs us four and one-quarter cents for giving every man, woman and child who buys a bag the privilege of throwing them on our nice clean floors."

So, no more peanuts at the Seals Stadium.

Now—Will Brooklyn make it illegal to boo the Dodgers?

Sports Mirror

By PETE SALLAWAY

COAST Hockey League attendance figures up until the end of January showed a healthy jump of 9,064 over last season. Up to and including games of Jan. 31, 547,799 people had paid admission as compared to 538,735 for the same number of games during the 1948-49 season. The increase is due to the fact that Victoria has drawn 51,860 more people than did the now disbanded Oakland club during the same period last season.

VICTORIA fans will get little pleasure out of the news inasmuch as they are bemoaning the fact the Cougars are resting in the cellar. Fact that local supporters have sat through a lot of interesting hockey engagements at the Memorial Arena this season does not enter into their arguments. They expected a contender for league honors. Majority of fans do not think of the fine entertainment offered. Their main interest is the position of the Cougars in the league standings. Victorians also don't forget they are paying more for their hockey than fans in Vancouver and New Westminster.

ODDLY enough Vancouver and New Westminster report a drop off in attendance. League officials report their take-down just over 10,000. Other cities showing an increase are Seattle, 41,166; Los Angeles, 1,241, and San Francisco, 733. The largest drop was recorded from San Diego where the attendance is off 15,903. Portland, Tacoma and Fresno show a slight decline from last year's record attendance.

DURING recent games officials of the local Commercial Hockey League figured their attendance was up to normal but when it came time to count the night's take there was a decided drop. Then somebody got smart and decided to check on the guest passes. Doormen picked up all the passes Tuesday night and the mystery was solved. Some enterprising person had printed up a lot of passes, forged the secretary's signature and apparently handed them around wholesale. Anybody with a guest pass had better toss it in the fire as the league plans a new issue.

MONTREAL Alouettes returned the Grey Cup to the east last fall and seem prepared to do everything they can to keep Canada's major football trophy in its present surroundings. The Als are not adverse to player raiding as evidenced by their signing of Rod Pantages and Pete Thodas this week. The two Vancouver stars were ripe for picking after their slap at Calgary Stampeders at the close of the 1949 season. They were the two "play for peanuts" boys. Loss of the pair will mean additional rebuilding for the western champion Stamps.

Ironmen Nip Penguins; Cougars Beaten Again

Victoria Cougars lost another hockey game last night, this time to Los Angeles Monarchs, 7 to 1, in the second game of their southern division tour.

Jack McIntyre was the Cougars marksman, Len Mutcheson getting the assist. The goal came in the second period.

Leading the Monarch offensive was Sammy Kennedy with three goals. Monarchs led 2 to 0 at the end of the first period, 3 to 1 at the end of the second, and slapped four more goals into the twine in the final 20 minutes.

The next game for the Victoria club will be against Fresno Falcons Saturday night.

REGAIN TIE

Seattle Ironmen moved back in a fourth-place tie with Portland Penguins in the northern division race by defeating the Penguins, 3 to 1. Goalie Jerry Cotnoir starred in the Seattle nets with 35 saves.

Portland pulled netminder Tom Karakas from the ice in a last-minute effort to score but Joe Medynski cinched matters for the Ironmen, slapping the puck into the empty cage.

Fresno Falcons and San Francisco battled to a 1 to 1 tie on San Francisco ice.

'Y' In Form Reversal To Take Series Lead

A complete second-half reversal of form on the part of both teams last night gave Y.M.C.A. a 42 to 31 triumph over Arrows in the third game of the best-of-five series for the city senior A men's basketball championship.

It also gave the "Y" squad coached by Art Chapman a two-to-one lead in the series and established the defending champions as favorites to meet Alberni Athletics in the island final.

The first half of the game was all in Arrows' favor, while the second half was strictly a Y.M.C.A. show.

Arrows were the steadier squad in the opening 20 minutes. They passed well and set up many nice scoring plays with Bill Prior and Fred Ranson doing the sniping. The "Y" on the other hand were weak on offence and appeared a beaten team when they left the floor at the intermission trailing 19 to 12.

What happened at half time is not known. But when the two clubs returned to the floor they were totally different teams. The Arrows started to throw the ball away with reckless abandon while the "Y" looked like defending champions for the first time this year.

Y GRABS LEAD

Checking far up the court the "Y" immediately cut into Arrows seven-point margin and by the five-minute mark of the second canto had gone ahead 22 to 21 on Rookie Wright's one hander from the side court. Prior scored on a lay-in to regain the lead for Arrows but Wright and Doug Peden then scored in succession to put the "Y" in the lead to stay at 25 to 23.

Outplaying their opponents by a wide margin at this stage of the game, the "Y" slowly increased their margin until the final horn. Closest Arrows could come with an attempted rally was 30 to 27 with six minutes left.

Long John Clark topped the scorers of both clubs with 13 points, but it was veteran Doug Peden who was the best player on the court. The husky guard turned in his best game of the season as he sparked the "Y" second-half assault. He intercepted many a stray Arrow pass and played a brilliant steadying game throughout the contest.

Ernie Fox and Prior shared point-making honors for the Arrows, each netting eight.

But for the anti-climax of the evening the seniors had to doff their hats to Bernie Clarkson of St. Louis College.

Clarkson Plays Hero Role

That rugged little competitor of the well-known sporting name became the hero of his school last night when he scored a sensational basket to give his club a 42 to 41 series victory over Elks and the city intermediate A men's championship.

With less than a second to go and his team trailing by one point in the series, Clarkson fired a desperation one-hander at the hoop.

The final horn went as the ball was in the air. Then came suspense.

The ball hit three times on the rim of the basket, then dropped through.

A wildly excited crowd of College students almost lifted the roof off the building as the net sagged with the weight of the sphere and they realized a championship had been won.

The actual score of the game was Elks 22, College 18, College having won the first game of the total-point series, 24 to 19.

In the preliminary attraction, Tillicums whipped Lake Cowichan, 49 to 17, to win the lower island junior boys' championship by a series score of 110 to 35.

Teams and scorers follow:

Y.M.C.A.—Clark 13, Clarkson 1, Wright 7, Dale 2, Peden 12, Olson, Fields 3, Tooby 3, Baxter 1.

Arrow Furniture—Fox 8, J. Ranson, F. Ranson 6, Gastner 1, McGaghey 1, Prior 8, Anderson 4, Hall, Hampton, Curtiss 3.

All persons interested in skeet or trap shooting are invited to attend.

Ballance Ties Adam For Coast Scoring Lead

Tacoma Rockets Doug Adam, who returned to his Pacific Coast Hockey League club this week after a brief stay with the New York Rangers of the N.H.L., saw a Vancouver forward pull into a first-place deadlock for the northern division scoring lead Tuesday night.

However, it was not left-winger Alan Kuntz, the player conceded by most P.C.H.L. fans to take over the lead when Adam went up to the big time—it was shifty Bobby Ballance.

Ballance added two goals and an assist to his total Tuesday as the Canucks trimmed New Westminster, to boost his production to 33 goals and 36 assists for a total of 69 points, the same as Adam. Kuntz dropped to third place as a result of the tie, but is still only a point behind the pair.

Two more Rockets are deadlocked for fourth place, two points behind the leaders. They are Wingy Johnston with 33 goals and 34 assists and Mel Read with 17 goals and 50 assists. Ronnie Rowe, other member of the Tacoma No. 1 attacking line is right behind his mates with 36 goals and 30 assists.

College Fighters In Final Bouts Friday

A seven-bout boxing card will be presented at Royal Roads Friday night when cadets from Canadian Services College compete for the annual college championships.

Major Hockey's Press Relations Endangered

The Conacher Incident may have far-reaching effects on the future relations between National Hockey League clubs and sports writers.

Although the incident, which grew out of the alleged slugging of Detroit sports writer Lew Walter by Coach Charlie Conacher of Chicago Black Hawks, has only produced a few chuckles from the club operators, it is likely to be the number one item on the agenda the next time the hockey magnates get together.

The sports writers—especially those south of the border—have no intention of forgetting the incident. Yesterday the Detroit Hockey Writers' Association condemned the policy of the N.H.L. in relation to the alleged slugging.

Their sharply-worded communication to the N.H.L. protested the league's "failure" to take "disciplinary action" against the fiery Chicago coach. The writers said that the league policy threatens to "work great harm" to hockey and lead to "degeneration of authority on ice."

The association's communication brought a reply from N.H.L. president Clarence Campbell who said that the association's statement "is based on pre-judgment of the facts in a matter still to be decided before the courts."

SURPRISE WIN

The lowly Chicago Black Hawks came through with a surprise 3 to 0 victory over the league-leading Red Wings Wednesday night. Hawks came to life in the middle session when Metro Prystal fired a goal past netminder Harry Lumley before the period was 90 seconds old. Winnipeg's Bill Mosienko put the second Chicago tally on the scoreboard when he took a pass from Doug Bentley and Roy Conacher early in the third frame. Bep Guidolin slammed home the Hawk's third marker on a neat play with Bert Olmstead and Prystal.

At New York, Boston Bruins battled to a 2 to 2 stalemate with Rangers in the only other N.H.L. contest. A crowd of 11,269 was on hand to see coach Buck Boucher of Boston pull out rookie goaler Jack Gelineau with just 22 seconds remaining and send out six forwards. Schmidt fired the tying marker with 10 seconds remaining to make the strategy pay off.

Boston's first goal was scored in the first period by Paul Ronty during a scramble. Jack McLeod, speedy Ranger winger, evened the count three minutes later. Rangers moved in front in the seventh minute of the last period when little Tony Leswick tipped in Gus Kyle's rebound.

Tonight at Montreal, Canadiens clash with the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs. A win for the Montrealers would move them into a tie with Leafs for the runner-up spot.

Gehrmann Will Appeal Loss Of Wannamaker

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—Track star Don Gehman said today that a New York "friend" will appeal the New York Metropolitan A.A.U. ruling which took away his first place in the Wannamaker Mile and gave it to Fred Wilt.

Gehrmann said the protest probably would be filed in New York today.

The trophy originally was handed to Gehrmann after a close finish and it still is at the University of Wisconsin. The big silver cup will be displayed at the Captain Capers dance on the campus Saturday night.

"We haven't received official notice that the decision was changed," Gehrmann said.

He said he was declared the winner right after the race and "that was only fair because all the judges were there and all saw it."

The A.A.U. reversed the official decision because a third-place judge said Wilt had come in second. The A.A.U. ruled that he was not authorized to participate in the judging for first and second places.

Volley Ball League To Commence At 'Y'

A four-team spring volley-ball league will begin at the Y.M.C.A.

Team members have been drawn from the Y.M.C.A. business men's gym class, which for the past season has been playing "just for fun."

Refereeing and coaching will be handled by Archie McKinnon and Ken Hurn.

Players are asked to attend tonight's class so that they might meet their teammates.

Calgary Whips Regina To End Victory Dearth

REGINA (CP) — Calgary Stampeders broke their jinx last night and shoved it off onto Regina Caps.

Stamps led Caps down the garden path to the tune of a 7 to 1 defeat, registering their first victory in eight starts. It put the victors into a second-place tie with Saskatoon Quakers 14 points behind the league-leading Edmonton Flyers.

Stamps whacked in a brace of goals in the first and last frames and rounded it out with three in the second. Red Tilson's goal early in the second spoiled netminder Russ Dertell's bid for his sixth shutout.

Roy Heximer and Stan Devicq led the scoring parade with a pair of goals each, singletons coming from Bunny Dame, Doug Cairns and Julian Sawchuk.

A penalty to Caps' Jack Wilkie started Stamps off on the winning trail. Heximer tallied one and Dame followed it with another about two minutes later. When Tilson tallied, Caps appeared to be back in the game but Cairns and Sawchuk scored within a minute of each other and Heximer added the third late in the frame.

On the defensive, Caps just couldn't stem the tide and Devicq chalked up his brace.

Fred Mills Makes Retirement Official

LONDON (UP)—Freddie Mills, the British boxer who lost the world light heavyweight title to Joey Maxim of Cleveland on Jan. 24, officially announced his retirement today.

Mills confirmed rumors and unofficial statements by writing to his manager, Ted Broadribb, and asking him to notify the British Board of Boxing Control that he was giving up his British, European and British Empire championships.

Although the Victoria Cougars are on the road, Friday night will still be "hockey night" at the Memorial Arena this week.

The program is a natural, too. Leadership of the Commercial Hockey League, currently shared by Douglas Tire and the Fishermen's Co-Op Challengers, will be at stake in the second game of the tripleheader, which gets under way at 8.

The outcome of the fixture will likely have an important bearing on the loop title, as the clubs have only four more games scheduled following Friday's meeting. Both squads have played 17 games to date, with the Tiremen holding the edge in the win column, but the Co-Ops have lost one game less than the retread boys.

LOSE GOALIE

The Fishermen will be without the services of goalie John Dorey, who has left the city on the cableshop Restorer. His place will be taken by a Nanaimo junior puck blocker, "Spanky" Hodginson.

Opening game will see the Navy squad attempt to get back on the winning van after dropping a 4 to 0 verdict to Douglas Tire Tuesday, when they tackle the fifth-place Civil Service outfit. The latter will also be striving for the decision, as only three points separate them from the final playoff position.

Final tilt pits together the youthful B.O.P. squad and the fourth-place Hotelmen.

Forgotten Larry Gains Earns Living As Laborer In England

SHOEBURYNESS, Essex, Eng. (CP)—Larry Gains, former British Empire heavyweight champion and one of the greatest boxers Canada ever produced, now works as a day laborer.

he Toronto negro, who drew £2,400 (then about $12,000) for outpointing Primo Carnera in 1932, makes £6 ($18.60) a week these days. The ambling Alp went on to the world title and a spell in the really big money—but Larry fought for comparative chicken feed for the rest of his career.

Gains, now 49, lives with his wife and family in a modest, three-bedroom house in this Thames estuary town.

"I've been living in this district since 1937," he said in a recent interview. "Southend, just nearby, used to be my training camp before my big fights and I got to like it. Now I've settled down and have a lot of friends here."

The man who worked his passage from Canada to England as an unknown amateur 27 years ago leaned on his shovel and recalled the names of men he had beaten on the way to the empire crown—"Phainting Phil" Scott, Dom McCorkindale, Maurice Griselle, Pierre Charles.

In 1926 he knocked out another future world-beater, Max Schmeling, at Cologne. He won the Empire title in 1931 from Scott and lost it in 1934 to Len Harvey.

FINE RECORD

"For six year, until 1932, I was the only heavyweight in the world to remain undefeated," Gains said.

"I rode to hounds in the Midlands, had my own stables—but the money went."

For some years Larry's annual income ranged around £2,000. His career was prolonged by a series of comebacks, long after he had lost his title or had much hope of regaining it.

He served as a sergeant in the army physical training corps in the war, then ran his own dance band and gave a number of boxing exhibitions.

Larry lives for the day that his son Jackie—at 17 already a 176-pound six-footer—enters the ring. Young Gains trains daily with his father but so far hasn't made his professional debut.

Report Good Supply Of Mexican Fruits, Vegetables In City

Mexican fruits and vegetables are plentiful this week, local wholesalers report.

First shipment of Mexican green peas arrived this morning, and tomatoes and green peppers are in good supply now.

Regular shipments of Mexican oranges, which are cheaper than the California variety, are coming in. The Mexican brand are exceptionally good quality oranges, wholesalers say.

Bananas now are scarce, and it may be two months before the shortage is relieved.

Housewives have a wide variety of grapefruit from which to choose. Good supplies of Florida, Texas and California brands are now on hand.

Although most varities of potatoes are in good supply at present, the drybelt brand are not too plentiful.

Apple supplies apparently are dwindling. The Macintosh Reds from the Okanagan are now expected again for some time and the supply of Okanagan Delicious is almost exhausted.

Denver purple-top turnips are now in town, and a shipment of California fresh pitted dates arrived this week.

Will Ask Minister To Open I.C.A. Act

The Victoria Trades and Labor Council is not satisfied with the B.C. Industrial Conciliation and Arbitration Act as it now stands.

At a meeting Wednesday night, the council voted overwhelmingly to send a delegation to the office of Labor Minister John Cates, asking him to open the act for investigation and amendment.

Magistrate Ponders Puzzle Of Which Man Was Driving

Solving the question of which of two men was driving a car involved in a $1,000 collision at Fort and Yates Streets Feb. 8 is the problem of Magistrate H. C. Hall who today heard the evidence on a drunken driving charge.

The trial is that of Godfrey H. Simons, 1193 Beach Drive.

Simons is alleged to have been the driver of a car which was in collision with another driven by Alfred Smith, 627 Pandora Avenue.

Case was remanded to Friday to give defence counsel David Sloan opportunity to look up authorities on cases of that nature to use in his argument.

In the witness box, Lt.-Cmdr. R. Bremner, 2156 Brighton Street, testified that he was driving the car at the time of the accident. He said that when he left the Pacific Club with Simons, the accused asked him to drive the car.

Simons also testified he was not driving at the time, verifying the statement he had asked Bremner to drive because of illness.

Bremner, under cross-examination by Claude L. Harrison, city prosecutor, admitted he had told a lie to Constables Lyle Somers and Lorne Johnson when he replied "Yes" when they asked him if he had been a passenger in the car.

Simons said that while he had told police at the scene he was the driver, he had told Dr. E. L. McNiven, when being examined for sobriety at the police station later, that he was driving the car at the time.

Dr. McNiven said he had found Simons intoxicated and not in a fit condition to drive.

Wilfred A. Turner, Well-Known War Veteran, Dies At 65

Wilfred A. Turner, 1619 Pinewood Avenue, First World War overseas veteran, died Wednesday night at the age of 65.

He served with the 7th Battalion of the C.E.F. in France in the 1914-18 war and was discharged with a severe disability.

Mr. Turner was for many years with the old Department of Soldiers' Re-establishment and later with the Employment Service of Canada. His sole job in the latter was to find work for war veterans, and he concentrated particularly on trying to place disabled veterans at work they were able to do. He retired several years ago.

A member of Camosun Lodge No. 60 of the Masonic Order, Mr. Turner is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Jagger, and a son, Stewart, who is living in the United States and has come here to arrange the funeral service.

City police today reported that an unsuccessful attempt had been made overnight to break into the Smart Style Shop at 145 Menzies Street.

Keenleyside To Speak At Conference Close

A comprehensive summary of the B.C. Resources Conference by I. McTaggart Cowan, professor of zoology at U.B.C., concluded the two-day sessions this afternoon.

The conference, which was attended by experts in all fields of resources of government, industry and university, will end tonight with a dinner at which Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside, deputy minister of mines and resources for the federal government, will speak on "The International Significance of Canadian Resources."

CO-OPERATIVE EFFORT

In a paper on wildlife problems, W. A. Clemens, head of the zoology department at U.B.C., said the solution of major problems involved a co-operative effort with all natural resources agencies in determining the wisest use of land and water.

He said water was essential to practically all forms of game animals, and each modification of a stream or lake had some effect on the wildlife resources.

At this morning's session, D. L. Pitt, president of the mining association of B.C. and Dr. H. L. Purdy, Vancouver, director of rates and research for the B.C. Electric Company, read papers on mining and power problems, respectively.

Mr. Pitt termed labor one of management's biggest problems, but added there were some signs that indicated "a more reasonable approach to labor negotiations and the solution of some of the vexatious problems."

Dr. Purdy outlined the potentialities of power development in the province and said processing of primary raw materials, involving such customers as pulp and paper mills and a steel mill, was offering the largest potential market for electric power.

Lt.-Col. Tom Moore Named President Of Next-Of-Kin Club

Lt.-Col. Thomas Moore

The executive secretary of Prince Robert House was elected president of the Victoria branch of the Next-of-Kin Association at the annual meeting Wednesday night.

The association has branches across Canada and is composed of kinfolk of Canadian veterans of the Second World War.

Interest in the organization has picked up in recent months. It is hoped the branch will have a big membership like those enjoyed in the larger cities of the Dominion.

H. Harrison was elected first vice-president and Mrs. M. Bland second vice-president. Mrs. W. W. Taylor was returned as secretary and Mrs. William Gibb as treasurer. Elected to the executive were Mrs. Kinloch-Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Sinclair and A. C. Craib.

Accidental Death

A verdict of accidental death was returned today at the inquest on Fong Shong Wing, 63-year-old Chinese worker at the Henry Greenhouses, Kenneth Street.

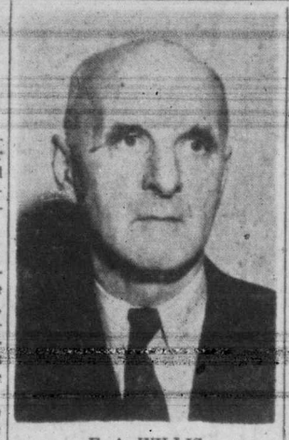
The Chinese was found at the foot of a four-and-a-half-foot boiler well last Sunday morning by fellow workers.

'Sneak' Preview At Royal Tonight

In addition to the regular picture attraction, the Technicolor musical "On The Town," starring Gene Kelly, Frank Sinatra, Anne Miller and Betty Garrett, at the Royal tonight, there will be presented what is termed as a Hollywood sneak preview.

Of course there will not be the usual klieg lights and famous stars attending the performance, but the public will see for the first time in Victoria, a picture that is rated as one of the best comedies of the year.

The name of this attraction cannot be given, but those attending can be assured that it will certainly be worth while seeing.



F. A. WILLIS

Elected President

Pacific Club members have elected F. A. Willis as president, succeeding H. M. Francis.

David L. Meharey is vice-president, and executive committee members are: A. W. J. Smith, A. Victor Clarke, A. H. C. Jones, B. M. Hunnings and J. H. B. Watson.

Toastmasters Prepare

Dale Kilshaw and Dick Dee were toastmaster and topicmaster, respectively, at the weekly meeting of the Camosun Toastmaster's Club 757 Wednesday night.

Twenty-two members and four guests attended the dinner meeting.

Club members expressed their interest in the forthcoming Golden Gavel and District Toastmasters' speech contests.

Fuel Situation Improving; Island Coal Now Available

For the first time in more than a month the fuel situation in Victoria is becoming a little easier.

Milder weather is the main reason.

For those in serious need of fuel, Vancouver Island coal can now be had from most dealers within two days. Alberta coal is still short, though, and some dealers are still a month behind in filling orders.

Mountain slides, blocking rail lines, have delayed many shipments to the city and have slowed down operations at the mines to some extent.

Wood is available now from some dealers but it is green wood, not dry. Many up-island mills have yet to reopen.

The sawdust supply still is poor but is improving. The largest sawdust manufacturing mill in the city is hoping to catch up on its orders in about two weeks. No new orders will be taken until old orders have been filled.

Most fuel dealers are still following the policy of looking after their regular customers first.

A fine of $50 or one month in jail was imposed against John A. Gray when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of supplying Agnes Jack, an Indian girl, with rye whisky today.

Reviews Progress Of Restaurant Group

Progress of the Canadian Restaurant Association in raising the saatus of the industry, third largest in Canada, was reviewed by O. B. Taylor, first president of the association's five-year-old Victoria branch, at a meeting of the branch executive.

Mr. Taylor said the association, working with civic and provincial departments dealing with such matters as sanitation, labor, rationing and vocational training, had brought closer co-operation and fellowship among the operators as well as enabling the public to receive better and more efficient service.

Officers and directors of the Victoria branch also attended a regional meeting of the association held in Vancouver Wednesday.

fluffy DELTA RICE and Sausages

Preparing Fluffy White DELTA RICE

Put 1 cup of DELTA RICE, 1 teaspoon salt and 2 cups cold water in a two-quart saucepan. Cover with a tight-fitting lid. Set over a hot flame until it boils vigorously. Then reduce the heat as low as possible and simmer for 14 minutes more. During this time, the rice will absorb the water and come out deliciously tender. Remove the lid to permit the rice to steam dry. Lift rice with a fork to test its consistency. Never stir rice while cooking—and the grains will be separate and tender. Serves four.

1 Lb. Delta Rice gives 15 generous servings. Costs less than 1½ cents per serving

HEART'S WASHING

Shake out the old dreams, Heart,
Out in the sane & comfortable
sun,
They will blow dry of weeping.
When the cup
Of wonder spills no longer & the one
Who was not one, but everything, is mute,
Emptied of vision, grave as thos who die,
Call not your love back with some lonely flute—
Shake out your dreams & hang them up to dry.

Sunlight is sure, & healing comes to make
The heart a quiet place when dreams are dried,
So that one lives without the old heartbreak,
but died.
Sunlight is safe; but oh, beware,
beware,
To hang out dreams if any moon be there.

Helen Frazee-Bower.

A BETTER STUNT I think . . . would be to get yourself one of our "THOR" Automatics. You wouldn't have to take a chance when hanging out your dreams, on that moon, besides you don't ever have to hang out clothes . . . the "Automatic" spins them dry. Tailored terms too.

CHANCE

How many times we must have met,
Here on the street as strangers
do,
Children of chance we were, who passed
The door of Heaven and never knew.

Financial Review

TORONTO (CP)—Western oil stocks held against an otherwise downward trend on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Gains ranging up to 15 cents were chalked up in key western oils following recent declines that pulled the list down to the lowest price level since December. Volume was about 690,000 shares.

Pacific Petroleum, Commonwealth Petroleum and Federated Petroleum were among the leaders in western oils as gains more than tripled losses. Royalite, selling ex-dividend, chalked up an advance.

MONTREAL (CP) — Stocks showed a mixed tone as trading picked up near the final hour on the Montreal Stock Exchange and Curb Market.

Volume showed industrials with 52,900 shares traded and mines 63,400 shares. Changes were generally fractional, but a few issues declined as much as 1¾ points.

Montreal Tramways was down 1¾. Canadian Industries Ltd. and Walker were each down a point. Consolidated Smelters declined ½ at 96¼ and Royalite was up 5 cents at 9.00.

NEW YORK (AP)—Airline stocks displayed independent strength in a generally lower market here.

Radio-television issues were particularly weak, with losses running to more than a point.

The balance of the market settled a bit early in the day and coasted along at the lower level.

Trading was heavy and turnover hit a rate of above 2,000,000 shares for the full session.

LONDON (Reuter)—The London Stock Exchange paused to take breath after Wednesday's leap to higher levels.

There was no repetition of the brightness and optimism that gave strength to many domestic issues. Nevertheless there was quiet consolidation of the gains in the miscellaneous leaders although active interest showed signs of being more selective.

Electrical equipment and cement shares notched further improvements.

Kostis Lemos Sails For Philadelphia

The Greek freighter Kostis Lemos, which went aground on Sansum Point, on Vancouver Island's east coast, last month, today completed loading her cargo of five and one half million feet of lumber at Cowichan Bay and sailed for sea.

Cecil Ridout of King Bros., shipping agents, said the vessel was bound for Philadelphia.

She came out of the government drydock at Esquimalt on Tuesday after having a small hole in her double bottom repaired.

Chief Dispatcher Of Coach Lines Dead

Chief dispatcher and former driver for the Vancouver Island Coach Lines, John H. (Jack) Sykes, 45, of 2883 Inez Drive, died suddenly today as a result of a heart attack.

Mr. Sykes had been a Coach Lines employee for 22 years. Before his appointment as chief dispatcher, he was a driver on the Victoria-Nanaimo run for 10 years.

During the past winter, he was in charge of a radio-car which operated on the Malahat, informing Victoria and Duncan bus attendants on the condition of the roads and assisting private vehicles over the grades in order to leave the highway clear for buses.

Favors Blood Test

Mayor Percy George received a letter today from Mrs. George M. Telford, 895 Richmond, in which she expressed herself in favor of blood tests for drivers involved in accidents who are suspected of drinking, if the tests can be made legally.

She said the move would be a "blessing" to the public and to the drivers themselves who might thus be persuaded not to drink when driving.

Canada Starts To Build Strong Anti-Sub Force

OTTAWA (BUP) — Four destroyers and the aircraft carrier Magnificent will be forged into a hard-hitting sub-killer force, R.C.N. headquarters announced today.

The proposed move is the "most important step taken by the navy since the war," officers said.

The action, they added, was the top priority part of a long-range scheme to make a clear-cut division between operational and training ships. The program had been blue-printed for some time, they said, but a shortage of manpower and skilled personnel had delayed its introduction.

Now, however, all was in readiness to set the wheels in action.

". . . Creation of a fully operational team of anti-submarine ships and aircraft will constantly remain the No. 1 target," top-ranking officers said.

"Operational ships and carrier-borne aircraft are being welded into a specialized anti-submarine force and are to be developed to the highest possible standard of efficiency," they added.

"While the change-over has a top priority, its fulfillment will not be accomplished without some difficulty and will not take place overnight," the officers said. "On the operational side of the picture, really tangible results are not expected to be apparent until 1951."

Attlee Shows New Face To Electors; Gets Dander Up

By PETER INGLIS

Former member of the Times editorial staff and now European correspondent for the Southam Newspapers. Published by special arrangement with the Vancouver Daily Province.

NOTTINGHAM, Eng. — The Prime Minister of England spoke Wednesday night first in the little country town of Newark and then in the big industrial town of Nottingham. He arrived for both speeches in the obligatory smallish black family car, with his wife for chauffeur, in which he has covered 1,000 miles and 20 towns in the last week. At both he looked tired—for this was the end of his grassroots journey. There the similarity ended: He might as well have been two Clement Attlees.

In the lovely, old and quiet little town of Newark he was suitably folksy. He climbed on a flatbed truck (the property of the co-operative movement) in front of a dusty town hall plastered with notices about foot and mouth disease and fowl pest, at one side of a market square from which the weekly market stalls had been pushed aside an hour before.

He was clumsy with his black hat. To a not over-enthusiastic crowd of a couple of thousand standing in the square he talked of suitable things: Farm prices, country wages and security.

LIKE LITTLE TIGER

At Nottingham he strode through police lines into a hall vociferous with 2,500 Labor supporters and acted altogether like a small, grey but quite ferocious tiger.

The Nottingham crowd had been preheated by two hours of local oratory, including that of a Mister Tom O'Brien, a Labor candidate, who referred to one of his opponents as "that great Irishman Mr. Gluckstein," called the Conservatives "congenital idiots" and said the Communists were "in the same camp as the Tories—the hunger camp. Stay there and die there."

(This was slightly below his standard of an earlier day when he complained the election was "too clean" and called Americans "pot-bellied magnates".)

Mr. Attlee waded into this atmosphere with as near as has ever been seen to blood in his eye.

He picked Winston Churchill's Edinburgh speech of the day before for his target, and went at Mr. Churchill up, down and crossways.

"SLAVE OF WORDS"

"It's a terrible thing when a master of words becomes a slave of words. There's nothing behind his words—they're just words of abuse. . . .

"He accuses us of 'wild extravagance.' Why is he never in his place in the House when estimates are discussed? He wasn't even present for the defence estimates—in fact he's normally present for half an hour a week, on Thursdays.

"During the war—he interpreted what the nation felt. The trouble is that now he interprets what he feels himself. He feels frustrated, so everyone else in Britain must be frustrated.

"His statements give an entirely false impression abroad, and that is a great hindrance to Foreign Secretary Bevin.

"Mr. Churchill is like the cock that crowed and thought he produced the dawn."

This was much different talk from the almost diffident words spoken from the truck in Newark Market Square a couple of hours before, with their quiet emphasis on a "square deal" for farmers, miners and workers in rural industries.

But then Newark is a traditionally Conservative riding which Labor hopes to win for the first time because redistribution has brought in 14,000 new (and potentially labor) votes from a mining area.

It needs gentle wooing. Nottingham is a textile and light industrial town already predominantly labor. What it wanted last night was not wooing but rousing. Mr. Attlee, who is not quite as small and grey a tiger as he looks, did a fair job of rousing it.

Claims Expulsion Was Illegal Move

Expulsion of Myron Kuzych from the Vancouver Marine Workers' and Boilermakers' Union was brought about by improper means and was contrary to natural justice, A. W. Johnson, counsel for Kuzych, claimed in Appeal Court today.

Kuzych is opposing the union's appeal against a Supreme Court judgment which ordered the labor organization to reinstate him and to pay him $5,000 in damage for wrongful expulsion.

Mr. Johnson in opening the case for his client today claimed evidence at the trial showed that Kuzych was not expelled from the union because he was a disturbing element in the organization but because he was against the principle of a "closed shop."

Films For Shut-Ins Planned By Council

A plan to use movies to brighten the lives of city shut-ins are being made by the Greater Victoria Film Council.

The council, comprised of delegates from 50 local organizations, hopes to purchase a projector and arrange with the city to obtain free films from the Public Library.

The council then will offer to show the films, without charge, in homes where persons are unable to get out and see regular movies.

The council is hoping the forthcoming Film Festival will provide sufficient revenue for the purchase of the necessary projector.

Here's Why You Need Aspirin When You Have a Cold

At the first sign of a cold—before you do anything else take two ASPIRIN tablets with a full glass of water. Here's why:

When you have a cold, it's almost invariably accompanied by a headachy, feverish feeling and muscular aches and pains. And it's very important to your well-being that you treat these distressing symptoms with a medication that will relieve them . . . relieve them quickly. By taking ASPIRIN at the first sign of a cold, you'll get this important relief.

No matter how you try to stop or shorten a cold, we believe that your own doctor will tell you that this is sound advice.

And when you use ASPIRIN, you'll discover why millions have followed this advice with remarkable results. For ASPIRIN works fast. It actually goes to work in two seconds to bring you amazingly quick relief from these painful cold symptoms.

This two-second speed is something you can see with your own eyes by dropping an ASPIRIN tablet in a glass of water and "clocking" its disintegration.

When your cold causes a sore throat, gargle with three ASPIRIN tablets dissolved in one-third of a glass of water. This makes a highly potent medicinal gargle that almost instantly soothes tender throat membranes, relieves pain and irritation.

Besides being effective, ASPIRIN is also gentle. Its single active ingredient is so gentle to the system that it has been used—year in and year out—by millions of normal people, without ill effect.

Keep ASPIRIN handy. When you buy, get the 100-tablet bottle which gives you ASPIRIN for less than a penny a tablet.

Because no other pain reliever can match its record of use by millions of normal people, without ill effect, one thing you can take with complete confidence is

Big Meeting In Ward Five To Argue Secession Issue

H. C. Oldfield, staunch supporter of secession for the farming area of Saanich formerly known as Ward Five, today assured that anti-secession Cordova Bay Community Club would have an opportunity to present its side at an impending meeting of ratepayers of the whole area.

No date has as yet been set for the meeting, but Mr. Oldfield said it would be a public one and the Cordova Bay group would certainly be invited to present their arguments.

A hot, verbal skirmish appears to be looming over the issue.

FIGHT AGAINST 'KIDNAPPING'

The thriving community on the shores of Cordova Bay made it plain at the meeting of Saanich council Monday night that they will fight with everything possible to prevent being "kidnapped" into the secession movement.

Ratepayers in the area, according to officials of the club, are in a solid majority against secession and want to remain a part of Saanich municipality.

Mr. Oldfield hinted that this section might have a change of mind "after they hear some of the information we have."

LARGER COMMITTEE

It was learned from Kenneth R. Genn, chairman of community club committee handling the fight, that a larger committee is being formed to take in the area beyond Elk Lake in efforts to get a majority opposing the move.

He said that if the Ward Five application was not being considered separately by the government, the club was prepared to include the Ward Six area in its drive.

While Mr. Genn said he understood Municipal Affairs Minister R. C. MacDonald was considering the two areas as one, Councillor Sydney Pickles contends they are being dealt with separately.

COUNTER-PETITION

A strong counter-petition is the aim of the community club.

Mr. Oldfield said the Ward Five Ratepayers' Association has not been active for about five years. The committee struck to deal with secession, however, he said, is still in operation and will go into action against anti-secessionists.

80,000 New Homes Completed In 1949, Says Government

OTTAWA (CP)—Nearly 80,800 new dwelling units were completed during the first 11 months of 1949, the Bureau of Statistics reported today, but construction of fewer homes was commenced.

Home completions were 18.6 per cent higher than in the same period of 1948. A total of 85,300 units were started, compared with 86,300 a year earlier.

It is not expected, the bureau said, that completions for 1949 will reach 90,000.

Completions in November were 8,700 compared with 9,701. Starts were 8,434 as compared with 7,795.

Paint Men Watch Farm Prices As They Study Business Outlook

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

This is the day of the "paint-up" men, about 100 of them from across Canada who are in Toronto for the annual meeting of the Canadian Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association.

Here are some extracts from various reports being presented to them:

G. C. McEwen of Toronto, president:

"All the facts point to a fair year ahead. Production continues to keep up. New building and maintenance painting will both call for considerable quantities of the industry's products. The automobile, refrigerator and home appliance fields have never been in better shape."

And C. C. Pettet of Montreal, general manager:

"Our industry is closely tied to the basic Canadian economy. There is a general lowering in farm prices coming. If farm income is scaled down, inevitably it will discourage buying on the part of farmers.

"Yet agriculture was never in better shape. It is better equipped with modern methods and modern machinery than at any time in our history. Furthermore, the debts that once were a colossal consideration where the farm market was concerned are gone.

"All this makes for low-cost production and while the farmer may not have the funds to expand, he will still be in a position to undertake necessary maintenance and to buy such consumer items as machinery, refrigerators, washing machines and automobiles."

David S. Catton, reporting for the publicity and advertising committee, cited examples of the manner in which the story of paint is being told. One such, this year, will be stories on the painting of hospitals which will go to medical associations and hospital boards; on the painting of restaurants, to restaurant associations, restaurant magazines; and so on.

Sister Dies 12 Hours After Learning Of Brother's Death

WINNIPEG (CP)—Mrs. J. C. Fuller, 45, of Winnipeg died in hospital late Wednesday, less than 12 hours after the death of her brother, E. A. (Eddie) Armstrong, city editor of the Winnipeg Free Press.

Mrs. Fuller was taken to hospital after learning of the death of Mr. Armstrong.

Born at Emerson, Man., Mrs. Fuller was a graduate of the United Church Training College at Toronto. She acted as secretary of the United Church Girls' Work Board of Manitoba.

Survivors include her husband, two daughters and one son.

No Return For Windsors

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Duke of Windsor Wednesday emphatically denied London rumors of last week that the Duchess and he plan to make their home in England. "There is no truth in that report," he said at a press conference.

Another Decrease In Prices Board Staff

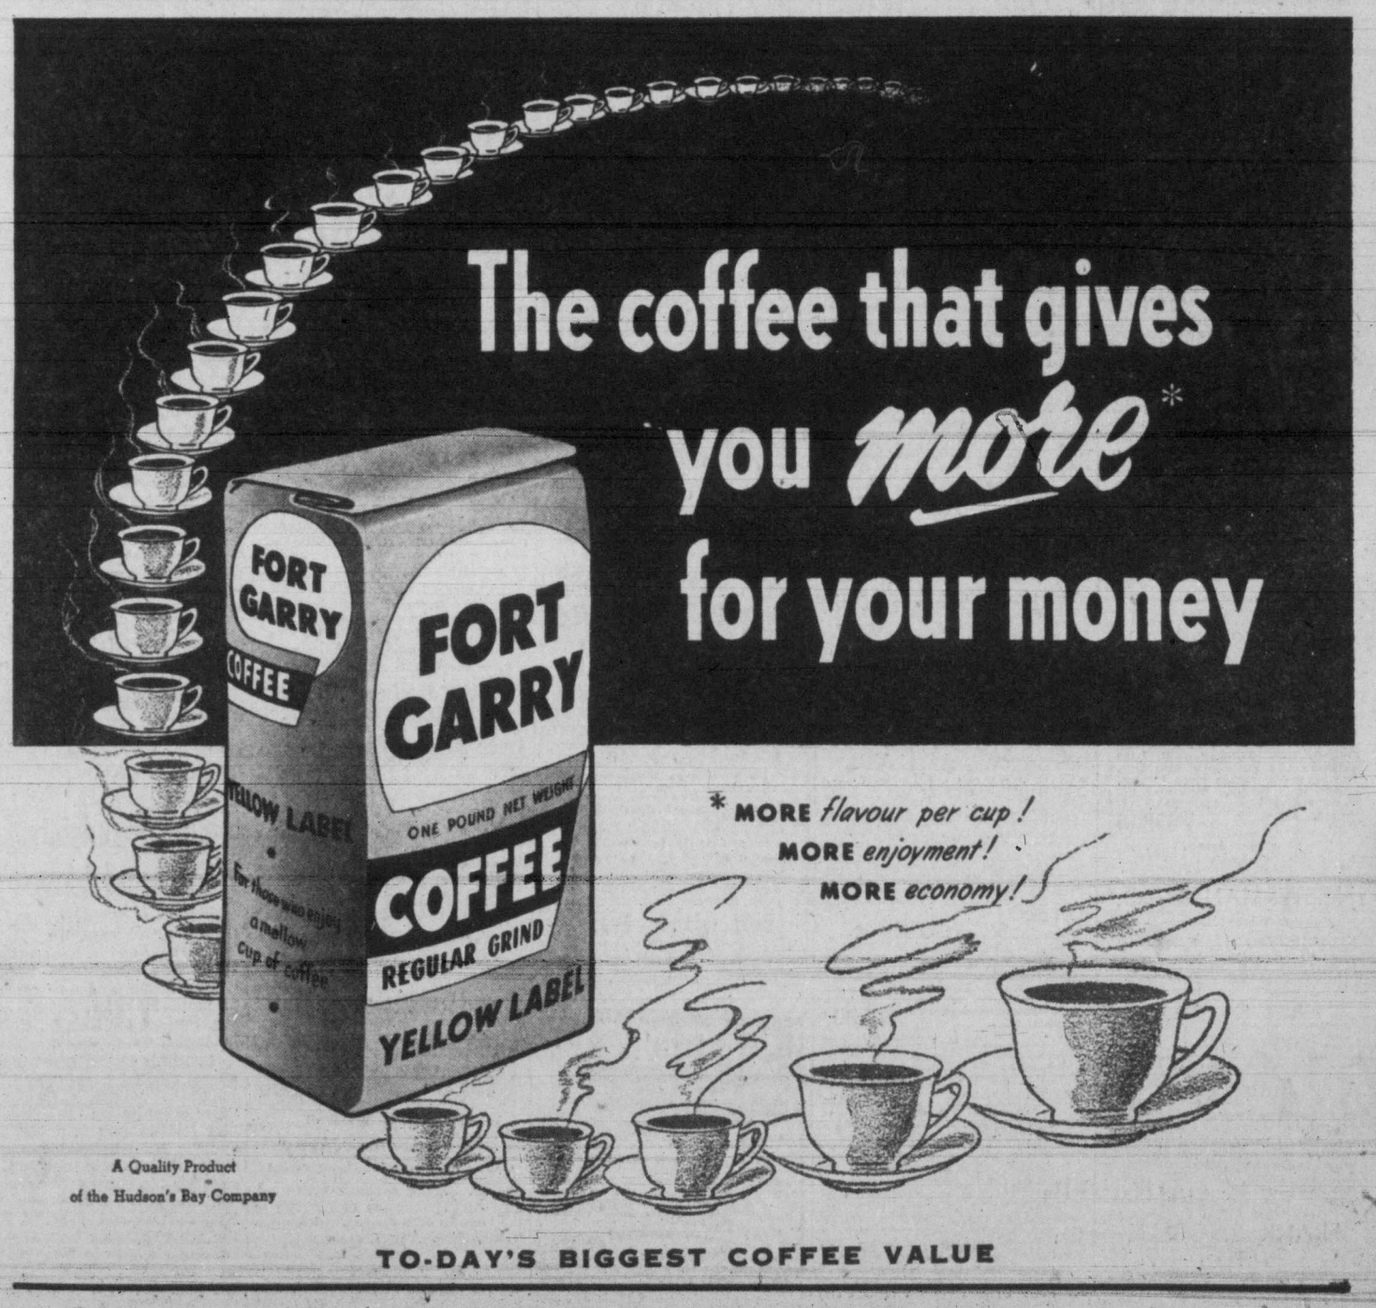
OTTAWA (CP)—The Prices Board, established by the government during the war to handle the complex price, rent and other controls, is gradually passing out of existence.

The board's peak wartime staff of 6,000 now has dropped to about 750. Another drop may result from the removal Tuesday of price controls on steel scrap.

Main function of the board now is administration of domestic rent controls. The government recently asked the Supreme Court of Canada to rule on the validity of the controls and a decision is expected before the end of this month.

Should the court rule that the controls are not within the jurisdiction of Parliament, about 500 employees of the board will have to be transferred to other government departments or released.

If the court rules the controls are within the competence of Parliament, then they will be extended to March 31, 1951.



UNDER GUARD, Joan Cecile von Goetz, 26, of Washington, D.C., former secretary with the three-power Military Security Board, was sent to the U.S., American authorities disclosed. Informed sources said she was deported after she had illegally entered the Russian zone of Germany. Because of her connection with the Military Security Board, Miss von Goetz was given more complete interrogation than usual when she returned to West Berlin.—(NEA Photo)

Wants Watermelons For His Sick Boy

EDMONTON (CP) — Mike Gonek of Edmonton is seeking to import watermelons from the Canal Zone in the hope they will help his son, stricken with the kidney disease, nephrosis.

Gonek saw a newspaper picture of a boy in Texas suffering from the disease who was reported improved after drinking watermelon juice.

Wholesalers say no melons are available in Canada or the United States.

The boy was first stricken in September, 1948. He improved, then became ill again recently.

Hollywood Review

Fails As Saleswoman

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What happens when a movie star poses as a door-to-door seller? In Lucille Ball's case, she flopped flatter than a doormat.

The carrot-topped actress will play the title role in "The Fuller Brush Girl." Since realism is the keynote in Hollywood now, she got in training for her part by being a residence retailer of cosmetics. Not only did she meet buyer resistance—she had trouble giving her wares away.

She picked out an area in North Los Angeles for her research. I tagged along. Also three studio employees, a photographer, Miss Ball's hairdresser and a studio chauffeur.

Lucille slung her cosmetic kit over her shoulder and strode up to the first house. She rang the doorbell and tapped her foot impatiently. A housewife stuck her head around the door.

"How do you do," said the actress, "I'd like to show the new line of cos—"

"Sorry, I've got some friends I'm entertaining. I don't have time." That ended the interview.

We tried the next house. This time the saleswoman identified herself as a face appeared at a peephole in the door.

"How do you do," I'm Lucille Ball and I'd like to show you the new line of —."

"Can't see it now," was the answer and the peephole closed.

"She was stark naked," reported Lucille.

The next three residents failed to answer the doorbell. Lucille decided to try her luck across the street. Still no answers. She went back to the original side.

BASEMENT FULL

She finally had some luck with a little old lady with a barking dog. The lady admitted being a sucker for salesmen, adding that she had "boxes full of brushes in the basement." She accepted a box of cosmetics and tried to pay for it. "It's free," said Lucille.

The next old lady wasn't so cordial. She looked bored as Lucille made her spiel. "Would you accept this sachet as a gift?" said the actress.

The lady looked at it suspiciously. "This don't obligate me to buy anything, does it?" she asked. Lucille assured her it didn't.

I hope she does better in the picture than she did in real life.

Harbor Oil Burns

TOKYO (Reuter)—A film of oil, spreading over Tokyo Bay from leaking storage tanks, turned into a sea of fire, trapping five small ships and six barges. Crews escaped, but all the barges and three of the ships were declared a total loss.

Carse Says Quitting Line-up For Coaching

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill (Scrap Iron) Carse, player-coach of the Vancouver Canucks, says he has skated over his last blue line.

It became official today that Carse will no longer show on the line-up but will confine his hockey to coaching duties.

He first joined the Canucks in 1945 following a colorful career which took him from Edmonton to the National Hockey League with New York and Chicago, and on a Canadian Army team during the war.

Carse, who is 35 years old, has been just as colorful in the Pacific Coast League.

Frisco Seals Sign 3 As Tryout Camp Ends

SAN FRANCISO (AP)—Three rookies were signed by the San Francisco Seals at the close of their baseball tryout camp.

Yakima of the Western International League will be assigned two pitchers from Richmond, Calif., 18-year-old Bill Branson, a righthander, and 21-year-old Ed Halverson, and Ellis Daugherty, 20-year-old first baseman from Sacramento.

Conacher Apologizes

CHICAGO (AP) — Charles Conacher, coach of Chicago Black Hawks hockey team, today wired his apologies to writer Lew Walter of the Detroit Times who claims Conacher slugged him after a game in Detroit Feb. 8.

Conacher said "I sincerely regret the event. It was a bad night for the Black Hawks and for me personally and I was upset." The telegram added:

"The incident which came about was no doubt due to the terrible beating the Red Wings gave us and you know how distraught a coach becomes with the embarrassment of a 9 to 2 loss."

Four Big Planes Continue Search For Missing C-54

EDMONTON (CP) — Despite poor flying weather caused by snow and blowing snow, four four-engined planes today were scheduled to continue the search for a C-54 transport missing in the Yukon three weeks with 44 aboard. There were no new clues.

Wednesday, three American C-54s like the missing plane, and an R.C.A.F. Lancaster, extended the search into the desolate tundra and muskeg east of the Yukon. Two planes swept an area 500 miles long by 200 miles wide, southeast of Whitehorse, while the other two covered a similar area northeast. Expert radio operators listened for possible distress signals in the hope of obtaining a bearing on the transmitter while spotters scanned the ground.

The weather made searching in the immediate Whitehorse area impossible Wednesday. Search planes from Great Falls, Mont., and the R.C.A.F.'s No. 12 Group at Vancouver were diverted to the search and rescue of the crew of a B-36 which went down near the Queen Charlotte Islands early Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the R.C.A.F. said a requested "blackout" on transmissions on 8280 kilocycles had been "most effective." The band was left completely clear for distress messages, but no more were heard. Previously, it had been thought possible that intermittent distress signals heard on that frequency might have come from the missing plane.

Rescued Fliers Describe Night Of Horror, Cold

VANCOUVER (CP)—Cold, hunger and prowling wild animals made two "horrible" nights for 10 rescued crew members who bailed out into the blackness from their blazing B-36.

Speaking for his nine shivering buddies, Lieut. Roy Darrah told his rescuers: "It was the most horrible night of my life."

Twenty-two-year-old Cpl. Richard Schuler, the fourth man to leave the plane, said he landed on a tree which collapsed his parachute and he fell 20 feet to the ground.

"I landed flat on my chin. It knocked me cold. I don't know how long I was out, but it was still dark when I awoke. I just lay on the snow and curled up."

Later he heard a prowling animal. "He was just on the other side of a tree. I only had a screwdriver, but I sure was going to pounce on him if he came after me," he said.

In the morning he discovered the animal's tracks. It was a bear.

SHOUTED AT WOLF

Also hung up in a tree was Staff Sgt. James R. Ford. He managed to get to the ground and attempted to fall asleep in the snow.

"I heard an animal," he said. "I think it was a wolf, prowling around in the darkness just out of sight. I shouted and he left. But he came back and prowled around all night."

Lieut. Darrah, who landed in a tree within 75 yards of Queen Charlotte Sound, spent the entire first night 16 feet off the ground.

"It was raining and snowing and blowing a gale all night," he said. "In the morning I started to shout and got an answer."

The answer had come from Lieut. Ernest Cox, who had climbed down from a tree. The two walked five miles down the coast, where they started a signal fire.

"We were the first two spotted from the boat Wednesday," Lieut. Darrah said.

New Rentals Legislation Before Saskatchewan House

REGINA (CP)—With a colorful display of traditional legislative ceremony, the opening of the second session of Saskatchewan's 11th Legislature took place this afternoon.

Lieutenant-Governor J. M. Uhrich read the Speech from the Throne.

The Speech forecast future government action in the fields of rentals, health service, natural resources—especially oil development—farm products marketing, prison reform, rural electrification, highway construction and labor legislation.

The rentals bill, to be called the Lease-Hold Regulations Act, will likely come into effect April 1, when the province is scheduled to take over the field of domestic rentals from the Dominion.

The act will "prevent undue hardships and provide for more equitable adjustments in rents," said the Throne Speech.

Plans are being formulated to organize all the province into health regions, it said.

Other health measures would mean further extension of mental health services, including construction of a new training school for mental defectives, which would have an "ultimate capacity" of 1,000 beds, and increased provincial grants for tuberculosis sanatoria and hospitals in Saskatchewan.

The province aimed to develop its health program, pending federal legislation making support available to the province for a "comprehensive health insurance scheme," said the Throne Speech.

Suggests Fast Time End September 30

A plea for consistency across Canada in the date of reverting from daylight saving to standard time was made by George S. Mooney, executive director of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, in a letter to Mayor Percy George today.

Mr. Mooney said that some centres revert in September, some October and some as late as November causing confusion to the general public.

The federation contacted Canadian Railway Association, Dominion Motor Coach Association and the CBC on the matter and all have mutually agreed to urge all municipalities which go on daylight saving, to go on at 12.01 in the morning April 30, and revert at 12.01 in the morning Sept. 24.

At Least 15 Hurt As U.S. City Rocks Under Explosion

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP)—A violent explosion ripped apart a big building at the Dow Chemical Company today, killing at least eight workers.

Three more were reported missing in the smouldering ruins of the 100-by-400-foot building in which Dow processed rubber base paint.

At least 15 workers, and possibly scores, were injured when the blast shattered the building and shook this entire city of 12,000.

Rescue crews probed through its hulk seeking more casualties.

The explosion blew off the roof and knocked out a wall of a 100-by-400-foot building known as "Number 414." The building houses Dows rubber base paint process plant.

Service crews—not the regular employees—were working in the building at the time. For this reason company officials said they could not learn quickly how many men were at work there at the time of the blast.

The building is located at the eastern edge of the Dow property here, near Midland's city limits. Midland is a city of 12,000 population.

ALL AMBULANCES OUT

The cause of the blast has not been determined. Every ambulance in the city was called to the scene.

Immediately following the blast, a wall of flame shot up out of the shattered building. Firemen reported at noon, however, that the fire was under control.

The Dow Company, one of the worlds largest manufacturers of chemicals, extends over a wide area of this central Michigan city, 120 miles northwest of Detroit.

200 Days' Work Yearly Asked For U.S. Miners

WASHINGTON (AP)—John L. Lewis was reported today to have proposed to soft coal operators of the U.S. that they guarantee 200 days of work a year for his United Mine Workers.

Such a contract provision would be in line with Lewis' expressed desire for more stabilized employment in the coal fields, where a full-fledged strike is in progress and gunfire crackled on some picket lines today.

Lewis and the operators are engaged in new bargaining talks by order of a federal court. Thus far there have been no concrete reports of progress.

City firemen, who got five alarms for the fire which followed, quickly put out the flames.

Considerable damage was caused by the fire to wires and the transformers.

B.C. Electric trouble crews were quickly on the scene to repair the damage.

U.S. Senator Urges All Efforts To Agree With Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator H. Alexander Smith (Rep.-N.J.) today called on the Truman administration to explore every means of reaching agreement with Russia even to the point of a meeting between President Truman and Premier Stalin.

"We should not close any avenue of approach to a settlement of our differences," Smith told reporters.

He said if a satisfactory way could be found, then President Truman might be able to "sit down with Stalin" and try to work out an approach to the problem of world peace.

He said also that the United Nations should be kept in the centre of any moves to bring the countries of the world together in a peaceful community.

A White House official said Wednesday that Truman, in reviewing the deterioration of Russian-American relations, believes the United States ended the war-time lend-lease program "too abruptly."

Dean Rusk, deputy under-secretary of state, told a Senate foreign relations sub-committee Wednesday the State Department is ready to open discussions with Russia at any time on all "outstanding issues" of dispute.

He indicated such conversations should be within the United Nations, since the welfare of other countries would be vitally affected.

Bernonville Asks To Be Allowed To Stay In Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Count Jacques de Bernonville has appealed to the federal government against an order of an immigration board which ordered him deported from Canada, the citizenship and immigration department said today.

The department said in a statement the appeal will be considered by Citizenship Minister Harris.

The department's statement said: "The deportation of Count Jacques de Bernonville was today ordered by the board of inquiry established in Montreal by the immigration branch in accordance with the immigration act to examine him as to his right to stay in Canada.

"The decision of the board has been appealed by de Bernonville.

"The appeal will be considered by the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration upon receipt of the evidence which will be forwarded to Ottawa by the board."

In France de Bernonville is under sentence of death for collaboration with the Nazis.

Bridges' Union Stopped Work To Bring Troops Home

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Harry Bridges admitted today at his perjury trial that his Longshore Union staged a work stoppage Dec. 3, 1945, to "propagandize" for hasty return of U.S. troops from overseas.

"Yes, and it worked, too," Bridges boasted in answer to a cross-examination by government counsel.

Bridges, on trial as a result of denying he had ever been a Communist, claimed he had received thousands of telegrams from enlisted men asking if something couldn't be done to provide ships to bring them home.

At that time the war in the Pacific had been over for about three months and there was a great political hullabaloo, much of it purportedly inspired by the Communist Party, to "bring the boys home."

Bridges testified that soldiers wrote him that ships were not available.

The C.I.O. Longshore Union leader said shipping had been transferred to the more lucrative "luxury" passenger trade.

"But you knew at that time, didn't you, that the Russian government and the Communist Party affiliate in this country were anxious to get American troops out of Germany as fast as they could?" Prosecutor F. Joseph Donohue demanded.

"I didn't know it, I didn't care and I don't care now," Bridges bluntly answered.
